

TURKS ADVANCE; RUSS WARN ALLIES

U. S. Approves Allied Demands

STATEMENT OF HUGHES MAKES POLICY CLEAR

Wants Freedom Of Dardanelles And Protection Of Smaller Nations

Washington. — The unequivocal approval by the Washington government of allied proposals to insure freedom of the Dardanelles and the Bosphorus and also to protect racial and religious minorities in Turkish territories involved in the present Near Eastern situation was expressed by Secretary Hughes Tuesday in reply to an inquiry addressed to him by the Associated Press.

The question submitted sought to ascertain "the attitude of the government of the United States toward the proposals made by the Allies to the Turkish nationalist authorities." Mr. Hughes declined to comment on the territorial questions raised but made clear the attitude of the administration on the other points involved.

IN ACCORD WITH U. S.

"The American government is gratified," said Mr. Hughes, "to observe that the proposal of the three Allied governments seeks to insure effectively the liberty of the Dardanelles, the sea of Marmora, and the Bosphorus as well as protection of racial and religious minorities. These points of the proposal are clearly in accord with American sentiment."

"This government also trusts that suitable arrangements may be agreed upon in the interests of peace to preserve the freedom of the straits pending the conference to conclude a final treaty of peace between Turkey, Greece and the Allies."

NOT INVITED

So far as could be learned at the state department no direct invitation has yet been extended by the Allied government to the United States to participate in the conference of Venice as which a permanent peace treaty between Turkey and Greece and the allied governments is to be negotiated. Pending some action abroad which would bring up the question of American participation, state department officials have declined to place themselves on record as to the probable attitude of the Washington government.

In his statement Tuesday of American policy, Mr. Hughes did not deal with that phase of the letter and attention was called to the fact that the published text of the call for the conference of Venice did not mention the United States or refer to any nations except those directly involved.

N. Y. OFFERS GOV. MILLER AS CANDIDATE

Empire State Dissatisfied With G. O. P. But Not Ready to Quit

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Copyright, 1922, by Post Pub. Co.
Buffalo, N. Y.—Western New York as a cross section of the Empire State reveals so many political signs and symptoms that it often enables the political wayfarer to get his bearings. Ordinarily Republican in presidential years, strong for Harding and bitter against Wilson in 1920, one is amazed at the revision of feeling against the Washington administration which is encountered here.

To state it briefly, there's an anti-Republican drift on throughout this part of the state. This doesn't mean the people are pro-Democratic. Hundreds of Republicans who are dissatisfied with the president and the Republican congress will frankly say so only to reassure the inquirer in the next breath that they are not yet ready to turn to the Democrats.

TWO WEAPONS

What will happen in 1924 depends of course on two years more of performance at Washington, and much can always happen to retrieve a political loss. But for the moment the anti-Republicanism will manifest itself in two ways: A return to the Democratic party of many who left it in 1920 and a protest against Republican mistakes by staying away from the polls altogether.

No general inferences can be drawn for the rest of the country from the situation here for there have been many local factors to influence political thought. For one thing, the business men and staunch Republicans who felt on Friday last that the Harding administration hadn't been firm enough in handling the rail strike awoke Sunday morning to find that the government had been granted a permanent injunction of far reaching importance in the history of industrial conflicts in America. The street car strike here accompanied as it had been, by acts of violence has accentuated the feeling that otherwise is a normal reaction to Washington's behavior in a strike crisis.

T. E. WATSON SENATOR FROM GEORGIA, DIES

Came To Limelight As Result Of Charges Against A. E. F. Hangings

Washington.—United States Senator Thomas E. Watson of Georgia died suddenly at his home here Tuesday. Death was said to be due to an acute attack of asthma. From which Senator Watson had suffered recurrently for some years.

Although failing health had interrupted Senator Watson's attendance at senate sessions frequently in the last several months he was in his seat Friday when the senate adjourned and his friends believed he was then showing improvement. He was stricken suddenly after dinner Monday night and passed away shortly after 3 o'clock Tuesday morning. He was 66 years old.

During the first year and a half of his term in the senate to which he was elected in 1920, Senator Watson gave no indication of any impairment of the vigor and activity which had marked his long career in politics and as a publisher.

In his last speech in the senate delivered only a week ago last Wednesday, the senator severely criticized the administration for its course in connection with the rail strike situation. His previous attacks on the administration and most notably his charges of illegal hangings in the American expeditionary forces the subject of exhaustive investigation by a senate committee made him a conspicuous figure in the senate body during his brief service.

The body of the senator will be taken to his home at Thomson, Ga., Tuesday at 3:15. He had already made reservations on a train leaving at that time to spend the congressional vacation at his home. The senator is survived by his widow and two grandchildren.

21 DRUGGISTS, DOCTORS LOSE RUM LICENSES

Illegal Use Of Permits Cause, Declares Legal Dry Advisor

By Associated Press
Milwaukee.—Twenty-one permits of doctors and druggists to prescribe or sell whisky have been revoked by Lewis J. Barabant, legal adviser of the federal prohibition office, Tuesday.

Twelve are Milwaukeeans and the others are residents of upstate cities. Eighteen of the 21 are druggists and the other three doctors.

Ten of the druggists are Milwaukeeans and the other eight live upstate. Two of the three doctors are Milwaukeeans.

These revocations complete the disposition of the cases of 30 doctors and druggists who some time ago were ordered to show cause why their permits should not be revoked. The other nine, all druggists, were found not guilty.

Mr. Barabant Tuesday cited twelve holders to show cause why their permits should not be revoked. Six are Milwaukeeans. Half of the defendants are doctors and half druggists.

In all cases the doctors were charged with issuing prescriptions to persons who, the doctors knew were not sick, and the druggists were charged with being short of whisky or selling whisky to persons who did not have prescriptions.

JUDGE FACES SOLOMON ROLE IN BABY SUIT

Poulin-Tiernan Case Nearing End As Attorneys Start Arguments

South Bend, Ind.—The Poulin-Tiernan case, said to be the most sensational legal contest ever held in a local court, is expected to come to an end Tuesday and it will be left to Judge Ducomb to decide whether the charges of Mrs. Augusta Tiernan that Harry Poulin is the father of her ten months old child are to be upheld. Both sides will be given an hour for rebuttal argument when court convenes Tuesday following which the case will go to Judge Ducomb for decision.

WAS AT SERVICES

Poulin, after testifying that he is 46 years old, told Monday on the stand of the many social functions which the Poulin and Tiernan families had attended and substantiated state ment of his wife that with one exception he was at all the Lenten services in 1921 at St. Joseph's church. His absence that one time was occasioned by illness, he declared.

"Did you ever go to any building near Notre Dame with Mrs. Tiernan?" Attorney Samuel P. Schwartz asked.

"No I didn't," replied Poulin in a loud voice.

It was at this point that Mrs. Tiernan interrupted the testimony and a minute later Mrs. Poulin's half sister faint.

"You're a liar," shouted Mrs. Tiernan, as she jumped to her feet, sobbing hysterically and standing directly in front of the defendant. Her husband and attorney tried to quiet her. Faint she finally collapsed as Poulin answered her with the words "Sit down you'll hear more of this."

"Did you at any time walk to a park with Mrs. Tiernan and have unlawful relations with her?" the witness was asked.

"I did not," he declared.

GAVE HER BATHING SUIT

"I want to call your attention to a party or picnic at Barren Lake," Poulin's attorney then said adding "Did you not buy a bathing suit for Mrs. Tiernan?"

"Yes," Poulin replied and when asked to explain said:

"It is customary for a salesman to give the store a sample. He gave a suit for my wife a number 34. Since my wife does not swim on account of an operation I took the suit back to the store and exchanged it for a size 40 and gave it to Mrs. Tiernan. My wife knew all about this."

Mention of a mysterious woman referred to by Prosecutor Grilison as "Mrs. W." came out in the afternoon session. The defense made vigorous objection and insisted that the woman be referred to by her full name. The mysterious "Mrs. W." is supposed to have attended the concert of the Notre Dame Glee club at Notre Dame on Feb. 15 and to have sat next to Poulin.

SLASH ARMS TO 1913 BASIS, LEAGUE PLAN

Geneva.—The report of the committee on reduction of armaments which was brought before the League of Nations assembly Tuesday by Lord Robert Cecil for final action recommends that the European powers except Spain, Belgium and the newly formed states, reduce the total of their expenditures for military, naval and air forces to the amounts spent in 1913.

The report also asks continuation of the work of collecting statistics on armament and proposes international conference on traffic in arms and to consider extension of the Washington naval holiday plan to the members of the league.

London — The disposition of the people of the United States is to require payment of the interrelated debts owing to America. Representative Theodore E. Burton declared in an address Tuesday at luncheon given by the American Chamber of Commerce. Mr. Burton emphasized that he was speaking as an individual and not as a member of the American legislature.

GERMAN PRESS FLAYS DR. PAUL S. REINSCH

Berlin.—Commenting on the recent announcement in Japanese newspapers that Dr. Paul S. Reinsch, former United States minister to China, had gone to Peking as financial adviser to the Chinese government, the Allgemeine Zeitung says it is important for Germans to recall that "this is the man who, day and night, in 1917 bored away at Chinese government credence with successful government experiments with gun cotton, died aged 73."

CHIEF OF TRIUMPHANT TURK ARMY

MUTAPHA KEMAL PASHA

Constantinople.—There are only two parallels in the East today to the spectacular rise of Mustafa Kemal Pasha from low estate to the dictatorship of Turkey in Asia and confidence and devotion of the whole Turkish people.

One is Nikolai Lenin, premier of soviet Russia. The other is Mahatma Mohandas Karamchand Gandhi, Indian insurgent leader now serving a prison term for sedition near Bombay.

The Turkish nationalist leader was born in 1881 at Saloniki, Macedonia. Early in life Kemal selected a military career. At 12 he entered a military academy at Monastir, Macedonia. He completed his military education at the Imperial War college Constantinople, and entered the Turkish army. He was elevated to the rank of captain.

The young officer was deeply interested in politics and was antagonistic to the reactionary regime of Sultan Abdul Hamid, then in power. Kemal became an active supporter of the Union of Progress (Young Turk party) and soon was a leader in the movement.

Later Kemal became convinced that this movement under the leadership of Enver Pasha would be simply a return to dark reaction under a different name. He deserted the party and became politically a progressive independent.

When the World war came and Turkey cast its lot with the central powers, German officers were sent to train and reorganize the Turkish army. They found Kemal one of their most apt pupils.

After the close of the war and Turkey's defeat, Kemal became an aide to the sultan. In this capacity he was sent in 1919 to quell a rebellion among Turkish troops in Asia Minor. But far from quelling the mutineers, Kemal cast his lot with them. That was the beginning of the Turkish nationalist government in Asia Minor. The sultan officially pronounced Kemal an outlaw.

Kemal immediately proceeded to put his liberal political convictions into practice. Asia Minor was placed under a thoroughly democratic government.

A grand national assembly was instituted at Angora. In this assembly was vested full legislative, judicial and executive powers. Kemal was elected first president of the assembly.

The president carried his liberal ideas so far that he named a woman Halide Edib Hanum as a member of his cabinet—a thing never before heard of in a Mohammedan country.

Today at 41 Kemal is the biggest figure in the Orient.

He has fair hair and light eyes, is five feet eight inches tall and of medium build. He is characterized by an energy and directness usually lacking in Orientals.

SOVIET WANTS TO HAVE HAND IN SETTLEMENT

Armistice Conference Set By Powers For Oct. 2 At Mudania

BULLETIN

Constantinople.—General Harrington, the British commander in chief here, sent an ultimatum Tuesday to Mustafa Kemal at Smyrna by wireless giving him 48 hours from the receipt of the telegram to withdraw his forces from Kum Kaleh (Kum Kalesi) at the entrance to the Dardanelles.

The Turkish situation reached another critical stage Tuesday. Kemal Pasha's reply to the Allied governments has been made known at Constantinople by his aide and is an acceptance of proposed conditions but with the insistence that Turkish military movements shall proceed and that Russia, Bulgaria and Persia shall be admitted to the proposed peace conference.

The military situation has become increasingly serious. The Turkish forces have occupied Kum Kalesi at the mouth of the Dardanelles, commanding the entrance to the straits, with a cavalry force. Another nationalist cavalry force, 3,000 strong, at Eren Keli, 10 miles from the British lines at Chanak.

SOVIET SENDS NOTE

Soviet Russia has sent a note to the Allied powers, the Balkans and Egypt, proposing an immediate Near East conference in the hope, it says, of saving southeastern Europe from a threatened new outbreak of blood shed and giving warning that Russia will refuse to recognize any decision regarding the Dardanelles to which she is not a party.

The armistice conference has been set by the Allied high commissioner for Oct. 2 at Mudania.

Constantinople reports growing indications of the abdication of the Sultan of Turkey and the selection of a successor acceptable to Kemal Pasha.

Venzelos is now figuring in the political discussion at Athens. The former premier is mentioned as one of the members of the nationalist cabinet which will seek to reconcile the Constantinian and Venzelist element in a movement to assure a united Greece.

RUSSIA GIVES WARNING

Moscow.—Soviet Russia in a note addressed to England, France, Italy, Greece, Rumania, Jugoslavia, Bulgaria and Egypt proposing an immediate conference designed to find a solution of the Near East situation, warns the European powers against its ignoring the interests of those countries directly interested in the freedom of the Dardanelles.

The note, which was dispatched by Acting Foreign Minister Karakhan, declares that as none of the European powers is taking proper steps to prevent developments which appear likely to draw the entire series of countries addressed into war, the Soviet government considers that an immediate and powerful intervention can localize the affair and position (Continued on page 16)

Republican candidates nominated by the voters at the primary elections on September 5 will meet in the court house Tuesday evening to take preliminary steps to effect an organization of the next Republican central committee of Outagamie county. A. H. Krugmeier is the present chairman.

The Republican committeemen named are as follows: Julius Endlich, Black Creek; Emert Munier, Cicero; W. L. Laird, Ellington; John Garvey, Freedom; H. M. Culbertson, Greenville; F. W. ### EXPECT N. J. WOMEN TO DECIDE PRIMARY

Newark, N. J.—Women are expected to be the deciding factor in the Republican primary in New Jersey Tuesday.

Senator J. S. Frelinghuysen, a close political and personal friend of President Harding, running in the direct primary for renomination, is faced with a bitter enemy and a strong opponent in George L. Record, Jersey City lawyer.

Leaders in the Republican party say frankly that Mr. Frelinghuysen is in a real fight and they predict that a big vote by women, polled early, will go a long distance toward determining the result.

GIVES UP SENATE RACE TO OPPOSE HITCHCOCK

By Associated Press
Lincoln, Neb.—A. G. Wray, progressive nominee for United States senator withdrew from the race throwing his support to R. B. Newell, Republican nominee against Senator Hitchcock, but naming the Democratic nominee, Charles W. Bryan, brother of William J. Bryan as his associate for governor.

Ducks Cannot Bite But These Honk Warning

By Associated Press
Prairie Du Chien.—A duck cannot bite but it can "honk" a warning, when strangers approach as was the case of a farmer, running a moon shine farm" near here, who had two "watch ducks." Several officers armed with the password to the bootlegger's camp, made a raid on the moonshine cabin. As they approached the cabin the ducks honked a protest and the farmer rushed out to learn what was up.

One of the officers told him they wanted to buy a peck of "potatoes." "Potatoes" was the password and the farmer kicked the dirt away from a hill of corn and disclosed a bottle of moonshine. The ducks' trainer is being held for hearing.

MAN LOSES LEG IN SILO FILLER

Fred Lenz a farmer about 60 years old and residing near Split Rock had his leg amputated at St. Elizabeth hospital Monday as the result of an accident which occurred while he was assisting in filling a silo in the morning.

It is said that Lenz stepped on the blower of the feed cutter when trying to cross to the other side of the machine. His foot went through the heavy tin covering and his leg was drawn in and mangled by the fan blades.

The man was conveyed to Appleton by train and moved to St. Elizabeth hospital in Kunitz ambulance. The limb was so badly lacerated that it could not be saved.

$410,000 RELEASE MEN HELD IN MINE KILLINGS

By Associated Press
Marion, Ill.—Attorneys for the state and defense were scheduled to hold a conference with Judge Hartwell of Williams county Circuit court Tuesday discussing setting a date for the bringing to trial of the 74 men indicted by the special grand jury which investigated the 22 killings at the Lester strip mine near here, last June.

Eighty six business men of the coal mining district supplied $410,000 bond for the men charged with murder although merchants of Marion refused without exception to sign any bonds. This attitude on the part of the local population is commented on as significant in that it indicates that it will be much easier to obtain juries to try the men than had been anticipated.

CRITICIZES OWNERS IN GOLD MINE DISASTER

By Associated Press
Jackson, Calif.—District Attorney T. G. Netrich of Amador county, who is questioning witnesses at the inquest in progress here on the Argonaut gold mine fire Aug. 27, which resulted in the death of 47 miners, in a signed statement criticized the board of directors of the mine. His statement, he explained, was based upon testimony of many witnesses at the inquest Monday.

PAY GOING UP

"Wage scales are still going up," said John L. Sturtevant of the Wausau Record Herald whose address was entitled "Why Advertising Rates Should Be Increased."

"Paper manufacturers increased their prices $5 a ton, effective Oct. 1," he said "and no one knows what the cost will be Jan. 1, because quotations are made quarterly."

"There probably will be an increase in the cost of the materials publishers use. Lead and zinc have advanced $7 a ton in the last ten days and the trend is still upward owing to a scarcity of such commodities. Prices for these commodities are now above the average for 20 years."

Frank R. Starbuck Racine, speaking on "Why Advertising Rates Should Not Be Reduced," declared that he saw innumerable reasons against any consideration of such a step.

The league's membership consists of about 30 of the leading newspapers in Wisconsin outside of Milwaukee, with a combined net paid circulation of 200,000.

Siki, Black Champ, Wants To Be White

By Associated Press
Paris.—"I would give 50,000 francs to be changed into a white man," said Pauling Siki, the conqueror of Georges Carpentier, Tuesday, after receiving an immense ovation from a multitude of admirers in a Paris restaurant. The towering Senegalese said that he was afraid Dempsey would draw the color line. The new champion is married to a white woman, who comes from an excellent Dutch family in Amsterdam. She is a tall slender and blue eyed Hollander. She appeared rather overcome with the sudden fame and attention paid her.

GUN PLAY ABSENT IN DRYING STATE

Not Single Shot Fired In Two Years, Declares U. S. Officials

By Associated Press
Madison.—State prohibition agents have spent two years drying up Wisconsin without firing a shot.

Not a single casualty is recorded on the service log of the Wisconsin prohibition department, either among deputy prohibition commissioners or their quarry.

This is a remarkable situation in the opinion of W. Stanley Smith, prohibition commissioner who attributes the absence of gun play in Wisconsin prohibition enforcement to the efficiency of the department deputies.

DISARM MOONSHINERS

Time and again in their search for moonshiners in every part of the state the officers have come upon men prepared to shoot but each time they have been unarmed before guns were brought into action.

"All this is in a state that formerly was considered the wettest in the nation, and after thousands of arrests have been made of all classes of prohibition law violators," Mr. Smith said.

"It's a matter of being quick on the draw and knowing your business," the deputies say after their experiences.

Although there have been clashes with law violators and need for a show of armed force the deputies in each instance have managed to come away without serious trouble, and almost always with a prisoner.

SCIENTIST DIES

Buffalo.—Dr. J. Fleming White credited with successful government experiments with gun cotton, died aged 73.

CAN'T KEEP DRY BEYOND 3 MILES

Cabinet Meeting Orders Enforcement Agents to Observe International Law

Washington.—The cabinet at its meeting Tuesday decided to restrict prohibition enforcement operation within the three mile limit at sea except in cases where ships beyond that limit are in communication with shore through their own crews and small boats. Prohibition enforcement officials it was said, authoritatively, would be cautioned to observe this decision.

The subject of searches for contraband liners beyond the three mile limit formed the principal topic of discussion before the cabinet. Examination of municipal law authorizing customs of other operations up to the 12 mile limit were found by the president's advisors to be out of harmony with international law and it was held that attempts to carry out the municipal law provisions might involve the government in embarrassments with other countries.

It was brought out in the cabinet discussion that in the recent case of the British vessels Grace and Ruby, seized beyond the three mile limit, that the court held this vessel to have been within American territorial waters in effect since she was in touch with shore by means of her own small boats.

JAP CONFERENCE FAILS

Ching Chon, Manchuria.—The conference between Japan, the government of Siberia and the Japanese Soviet government failed to agree upon the evacuation of northern Manchuria.

The Supply of Rabbit Hounds is Low

John Stein, Route 9, Little Chute, drove way to Appleton to make sure that his ad of fering a rabbit hound for sale did not run again on the Post-Crescent-Want Ad page. The reason was that the first man who answered the ad bought the dog. Mr. Stein said that had he had 27 more rabbit hounds he would have had no trouble selling them for there were 27 other people who answered the ad. He also said some of the calls came so late that he had to get out of bed to answer the phone.

If you have a hunting dog for sale you can easily find a buyer by inserting a Want Ad in the Post-Crescent—and a buyer will soon have your dog.

The dog apparently was uninjured.

THE STAGE

"The Ordeal" at Fischer's Appleton. There are several novel touches which make rather notable "The Ordeal" which opened yesterday at Fischer's Appleton with Agnes Ayres in the star role.

In the first place the villain is disposed of in the first reel—but his influence hangs over the remainder of the picture. There's a crippled sister who becomes an important figure when a cure makes her into a super-fighter. And as an overture to it all, is a will which stands as a barrier to the happiness of several persons. Miss Ayres is splendidly convincing as the young widow while Conrad Nagel and Clarence Burton are well cast as leading man and "Heavy" respectively.

This picture will be shown for the last time today, tomorrow sees another big treat of the heralded picture of the season "The Storm". Three shows will be given daily, if you want to avoid waiting as well as crowds you had better attend the matinee.

VICTOR ARTISTS

The music loving public of this community will welcome the announcement made recently by the Carroll Music Shop that the Eight Famous Victor Artists will again visit Appleton, at Lawrence Memorial chapel, on Tuesday evening, Oct. 3. Last season they aroused a local audience to a high pitch of enthusiasm and Henry Burr, one of the eight artists, came in for his full share.

For years Burr has been a National favorite, his great popularity having been gained through the medium of his Victor records. During the past three years he had appeared in many cities as a member of the Victor Artists troupe, giving his address the opportunity of hearing him in person and becoming acquainted with one they have known so long only through a wax disc.

Burr has many hobbies, one of which is the raising of the black silver fox. Near Keyesville, N. Y., he has established a large ranch where he spends as much time as possible with his pets.

The program, which is given entirely in English, has been completely changed from last season.

The automobile began to roll over and over, throwing the occupants out and finally pinning one underneath the car. The injured person was carried to a nearby farmhouse. Appleton motorists were told of the accident Sunday afternoon, but their attempt to learn the identity of the automobile party involved in the mishap was unsuccessful. The accident is said to have occurred beyond the cheese factory.

Slick Farmers Let City Boobs Harvest Nuts

Farmers in Outagamie-co. have decided to go nut picking this year. They have found a better way of obtaining their winter store of hickory nuts, butter nuts, and whatever nuts grow in this region.

Instead of placing signs on the fences, such as "No Trespassing," "No Hunting Allowed," etc., they allow the nutting parties to encroach upon their properties and make them pay toll. Just when the nutters have filled their sacks and are congratulating themselves on their fortune and praising the farmer for his lenience—the owner of the property appears on the scene and collects the nuts.

More than one party has been spoiled in this way. Incidentally, it explains the excuses made by some of them to the effect that it's a poor year for nuts.

He was given the vibrolithic patent rights for the state of Indiana and organized a corporation which will open offices at 717 Merchants Bank building, Indianapolis. W. T. ## Why We Should Bathe Internally

Physicians agree that most human ills are caused by accumulated waste in the lower intestine—Headaches, biliousness and "that tired, dragged-out feeling" are but the forerunners of much more serious ailments, and more drugs are used with the mistaken idea of ridding us of this waste than for all other ills combined.

"Why not try the unfailing and perfectly natural method of bathing internally with the 'J. B. L. Cascade', and keep the intestine always clean and free from all poisonous waste.

Over a million enlightened Americans, many right here in town, are now using it, have bade good-bye to that half-sick feeling and are consistently proof against many ills, as well as arising every morning clear-headed and eager for the duties of the day.

Ask us today, while you think of it, for an interesting book on

THE HERRIN INDICTMENTS

The grand jury at Marion, Illinois, which has been investigating the Herrin massacre, has returned 214 indictments charging murder, rioting or assault. Seventy-six of these indictments are against members of the Miners' union, and the chief counsel for the miners in a statement has declared that the results of the investigation represent a "private persecution by a political boss and labor-hating organization." The political boss is the attorney-general of the state of Illinois and the labor-hating organization is the Illinois Chamber of Commerce.

It can make no difference to the supremacy of government and law in the United States whether the Illinois Chamber of Commerce is hostile to organized labor or not. There was a massacre at Herrin in which twenty-two men were wantonly and savagely murdered. No government that is a responsible and fit government can permit a crime of this magnitude and character to go unchallenged and unpunished. The men who committed this wholesale slaughter are guilty of murder and deserve to suffer the full penalty of the law. It makes no difference whether they are members of a union or whether they are not. Government does not discriminate for or against unionism when it comes to dealing with crime.

It would make no difference by whom the indictments were returned or to whom their prosecution was entrusted, the cry would undoubtedly be raised that it was the work of anti-union forces. Unionism can afford to defend only innocent men. It cannot afford to shield those guilty of the Herrin crime. Obviously men are guilty of that crime. It is the duty of the state of Illinois to ferret out these men and punish them. It looks as though a fearless and conscientious grand jury had made a commendable start in this direction. Its investigation has been painstaking and thorough.

There is hardly one chance in a hundred that an innocent man has been accused, and not one chance in a thousand that an innocent man will be convicted. The state will have its hands full in securing convictions, and obligation rests upon all law-abiding citizens of Illinois to give their moral support to the authorities who are courageously undertaking to wipe out the Herrin stain so far as justice can do so.

THE TURKISH VICTORY

It will be a matter of surprise as well as disappointment to America that Lloyd George has agreed, in advance of the Near east conference about to be called, to a return of Turkish power in Europe. The only conclusion that can be reached is that the British prime minister found himself alone in his original determination to bar the Turks from Thrace, and that he did not feel justified in inviting the further spread of the war, with all its dangerous possibilities, by fighting Turkey single-handed.

The outcome of the crisis is on the surface a victory for French policy in the Near east, but the wisdom of that policy is by no means confirmed. In effect it amounts to a repudiation of the allied policy in the World War armistice and in the treaty of Sevres. Turkey, a common foe of the allies which fought with Germany and Austria until the last and which prolonged the war, (in the opinion of Lloyd George at least two years) emerges from her crushing defeat of 1918 a veritable conqueror.

Fatal differences in Near eastern policies among the allies are responsible for this deplorable event. These differences led to the foolish and disastrous invasion of Asia Minor by the Greeks.

They led to a reestablishment of King Constantine on the throne of Greece and the overthrow of Venizelos. Lloyd George's caustic inferences on this episode show clearly that he regards it as a colossal mistake.

Because of the refusal of the allied governments, including the United States, to accept mandates over Near eastern minorities, these people have been left helpless and we have seen one fearful result in the burning of Smyrna and the wholesale massacre of Christians by the victorious Turks. The minorities in Thrace will be equally helpless before Turkish brutality when Turkish power is restored there. It is well enough to say that Turkey will be admitted to Europe only under restrictions that will give these people protection but there is little likelihood that the reality will measure up to the pretense. So far as the government of the United States is concerned, it views this unhappy outcome with indifference, but the American people cannot fail to look upon it with regret and sorrow.

Out of the mess there emerges one inspiring fact, and that is the unalterable decision of Great Britain to preserve the freedom of the Dardanelles under such joint control as will admit of no possibility of interference by Turkey or any other nation.

JUSTICE MUST STILL BE DONE

We can agree with President Harding only in that phase of his veto of the soldiers' bonus which is confined to the failure of congress to provide a way to finance the bonus. It is self-evident that a bonus cannot be paid without money to pay it. With a prospective current deficit of $650,000,000 and the necessity of paying in the neighborhood of $750,000,000 on the bonus during the first four years, it is clear that additional revenue must be provided. This congress was afraid to do because of the fear of offending more votes than would be gained by passing a dishonest and unfinanced bonus.

While we think the president's veto was justified on this ground, we disagree with most of his other conclusions on the subject of adjusted compensation. Mr. Harding appears to weigh the justice of a bonus and to decide against it in principle. He contends, for instance, that the government has discharged its just obligations to the ex-service men by taking care of those who are disabled and 'incapacitated'. He also argues that it would be mistaken national policy to bestow so large a sum of money on one twenty-second of the population of the country.

Adjusted compensation is not to be regarded as in the nature of a gift. It simply means a revision of the compensation given these men to a scale that will more fairly and justly pay them for sacrifices of time and income while they were serving the nation. It is not a reward for their heroism or a salve with which to soothe the memory of their suffering. It is something outside of and quite apart from patriotism, for that is a quality which cannot be measured in money nor compensated in gold.

The risk of life and all of the bodily and mental suffering these men went through can be rewarded only by the moral gratitude of the nation and can be compensated in the minds of the men themselves only by love of country. But there still remains the fact that the government paid these men for service aside from loyalty and that that pay was not sufficient. The government saw to it that the men who stayed at home and helped to provide the sinews of war were amply paid for their service. Manufacturers of munitions of every kind were rewarded with liberal profits which in the aggregate ran into billions. We do not say these men were profiteers, but they were abundantly paid for everything they did to help win the war.

The service of the men in the army was of a far higher type and they were not abundantly paid. The truth is they were poorly paid. It is pure nonsense to say that the United States, whose wealth has scarcely been touched by the war and whose financial obligations are small in comparison with those of other participants measured by ability to pay, cannot adjust the compensation of its men who served in the army and navy to a plane of decency and self-respect. It is worse to say that it should not. The duty has nothing to do with the contingency of pensions in the future or with other acts of justice to the veterans and their surviving dependents. It has solely to do with the justice of the hour, and with national appreciation of what these men gave up to preserve their country's honor, freedom and sovereignty. All of the arguments against an exhibition of this appreciation when stripped to the bone are sordid and belittling.

EXERCISE IS NOT A CURE-ALL

Exercise deliberately taken as a remedy is killing a lot of misguided folk and working havoc with many semi-invalids or valetudinarians who should be cultivating physiological rest. There is a cult, or, to dignify it with a name it doesn't merit, "school" which makes exercise a panacea and brings disaster upon many people who know so much that isn't so. It is not enough for the shrewd business men who exploit the glib followers of the cult to hold out exercise as a cure-all, but they must also condemn sweepingly all that educated physicians approve or advocate in the way of prevention and treatment of disease. There is, of course, method in their madness, for a certain following is assured to any scheme who damns the doctors and offers the simple public a short cut to health.

Altho the less intelligent layman fondly imagines that regular physicians do not employ exercise as a remedy, the more intelligent class knows that regular physicians always have prescribed exercises in the treatment of various disease states, both moderate so-called "functional" troubles and serious "organic" diseases such as heart disease. The truth is that the chaps who pretend to be the champions of "physical culture" have simply appropriated some of the medical and remedial of the regular medical profession and recommended them for indiscriminate use, precisely as many nostrum makers have appropriated some medicinal prescription originally intended for an individual condition and offered it to the world for indiscriminate use. Now everybody knows that what cured the blacksmith killed the tailor. If exercise is to be helpful, it must be adapted for the particular individual and for the particular circumstances, assuming that exercise is advisable at all. It is just as absurd and dangerous to imagine that exercise may be "tried" in any case regardless as it is to imagine that a given nostrum, from which Jones recovered after taking, will prove as harmless in the case of Smith. That would be a fine little system if it worked out right, but too often Smith suffers effects which are never described in a testimonial. One man's food is another man's poison, and although I can't explain believer in exercise, I can't conceive of nothing more ridiculous than the notion that, whatever ails you, some special exercise would be good for it.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

The Teething Obsession

1. Does a teething baby have to be kept warmer than usual? 2. Is it necessary to keep woolen belly band and woolen stockings on a baby in hot weather if the baby is teething? 3. Is it dangerous to let a teething baby roll about on his blanket on the floor with nothing but diaper and undershirt on? (Mrs. H. D.)

Answer—1. No. 2. No. 3. No. The cutting of teeth is a natural process and calls for no special attention or precaution.

Cancer Sometimes Painless

Is cancer painful? Always? (Mrs. M. M.)

Answer—In the early and most curable stage of cancer there is no particular complaint of pain in many cases.

Things in the Air

Which injures health the most, to inhale a pipe or a cigarette? A pipe seems harder on me than a cigarette and upsets my stomach. What do you use to clean your teeth with? (A. G.)

Answer—I have known some men who ate cigars but never one who inhales his pipes or cigarettes. If you are bent on this form of suicide it probably wouldn't matter which you inhale. On the rare occasions when I clean my teeth I use ordinary soap though some people prefer to use something that gives the effect of an ice cream soda combination, the undecorated soap not being sanitary enough.

Too Young to Think

Is it harmful in any way not to wear a corset? I have never worn one. I am 17 and people tell me I will get an awful shape and suffer for it later although I am very straight and have perfect health now. I take plenty of exercise every day. (Miss W. A.)

Answer—Well, young lady, look about you at the people who tell you all those fairy tales, and note particularly what perfect shapes they have, and what ideal health, after 20 years or so of corset wearing, and then decide whether you prefer to mend your ways. My advice is that you let people talk till they are blue in the face if they must, but keep right on as you are.

WHY WOMEN WERE DEFEATED

An unusual objection to the seating of women in the house of deputies of the Episcopal church was raised in the debate which preceded the vote by which the women were denied seats in the lower legislative body. It was contended that, while, the work and influence of the women in the church were worthy of tribute, admission of the women to the house of deputies would mean that "the men would eventually drop out of other business, and that the men would be abandoning their responsibility." It was not a very glowing tribute that was thus paid the men who are members of the house.—CHARLOTTE OBSERVER.

IMPEACHMENT RESOLUTION NOT WARRANTED BY SITUATION

There is general condemnation of Representatives Keller's resolution of impeachment directed against Attorney General Harry M. Daugherty because of the sweeping nature of the temporary injunction obtained by him in the railroad strike case. Editors, without regard to politics, believe, point out that there seems to be no ground for the proceedings and argue that it never was the intention of the framers of the constitution that impeachment should be invoked against an official under circumstances of this character. If the injunction is too broad, they hold, the remedy lies with the courts while if the Attorney General's official acts are displeasing the complaints should be presented to the President.

The action of the House in postponing consideration of the matter until December "seems to have been well advised," in the opinion of the Springfield, Mass., REPUBLICAN. (Ind.), as the "outcome of the court proceedings should at least be awaited before the Attorney General's critics are permitted to force a decision from the House Judiciary Committee regarding his impeachment. That the extreme reach of the temporary order of Judge Wilkerson has aroused a strong reaction in well known. If the temporary injunction should not be made permanent the legal precedent would probably be viewed by many as so menacing to the established rights of American citizens that the impeachment charges would be pushed if for no other purpose than to register a protest. That the attorney general will ever leave office by that route, however, is highly improbable." Representative Keller's program "is not apt to prove very menacing to Mr. Daugherty," the Springfield, O., DAILY NEWS (Dem.) asserts as "whatever has been done has been done with the administration's consent. As to whether he first impressed the administration with the thought that government by injunction would be about the proper thing has not been disclosed. It is one of the singular action, the President, apparently sensing the public criticism felt called upon publicly to explain why it was all about and what was intended. Enunciation of acts of federal representatives seems to occupy a large part in administration duties."

In the opinion of the Bellingham, Wash., HERALD, (Ind. Rep.), "the impeachment talk is what is classically known as the 'bunk.' In the first place it would be impossible to get a majority in the House to file charges. In the second, the Senate would not sustain them. More probably both houses would give the attorney general an overwhelming vote of confidence."

While the people have been right in questioning the sweeping character of the temporary injunction, because "of the tendency of the courts to press judicial discretion in this matter over the border of safety" the Columbus, O., DISPATCH (Ind.), insists there was no occasion for Representative Keller's action. "If impeachment was in place the object of such proceedings should have been the judge who issued the restraining order. But impeachment was intended by the framers of the constitution not for any mistaken use of official discretion but for cases in which criminal intent can be shown to be present."

Deserved criticism is only weakened by this sort of argument, are hurled at officials for offenses, or mistakes of judgment, never intended to be reached by so drastic a process." This likewise is the opinion of the Waterloo, Ia., TRIBUNE, (Ind.), which argues that "impeachment some persons will get a little temporary satisfaction over the impeachment resolution. Meanwhile wise labor leaders are not interested." The Richmond, Va., TIMES DISPATCH, (Dem.), sees no excuse for the proceedings holding that "it is foolish to allege that the Attorney General has violated his oath of government," and urging that instead of backing impeachment proceedings an effort should be made to have the President remove him from office because "Daughertyism is here to become an issue in American politics if the present Attorney General remains in office much longer."

Most of the charges made in the Keller resolution, the Lansing, Mich., STATE JOURNAL (Ind.) thinks, "smack of radicalism, and yet, if there is a possibility of truth back of them, they warrant investigation and action." It also points out that "Daugherty may have offered certain elements of interest. The restrictive nature of his injunction proceedings, and failed in his full duty in other cases, and his appointment to the office of attorney general may not have been the best which could have been made, but there is nothing which calls for impeachment." In addition, the Topeka, Kans., STATE JOURNAL, (Ind. Rep.), feels that "to say that the President's action, through Attorney Daugherty, takes away constitutional rights, is absurd. The object sought to be attained in the future as a bulwark against such happenings as the coal strike and the railroad strike with their records of savagery emphasized by the Herrin massacre and the Arizona desert abandonment. It is government intervention against industrial warfare by a single class—a warfare which is inaugurated and engineered for the express purpose of bringing about a general collapse of the nation, if the demand of union leaders are not complied with."

While in the opinion of the New York GLOBE, (Ind.), there is not the "slightest chance" that the Senate would remove the Attorney General it believes that the inquiry, if pressed "would undoubtedly illuminate the delinquencies of the Department of Justice. There have been numerous enough independent inquiries into this misused office which serve the common interest. An angry public opinion might goad the Attorney General into the performance of duties that have been long neglected. It might even lead him to go further and do better by resigning." The reason for postponing action until December seems plain to the Hoboken, N. J., HUDSON OBSERVER, (Ind. Dem.), which holds that "the movement was gaining too much ground and might have affected some election results and the Old Guard concluded to dodge it." Instead of pressing the resolution the Binghamton, N. Y., PRESS, (Ind.), believes the labor leaders should demand that Congress clarify its laws as "when the purpose of a law is not fairly apprehended, it is the business of Congress to make its meaning so plain that even a Federal Judge cannot err therein."

The proposal would be absurd, the Baltimore NEWS, (Ind.), suggests if it were not that the Attorney General has been under fire before and it thinks the "question is whether or not Mr. Daugherty still retains the popular confidence which should be indispensable for any man in the very important post of Attorney General," while the Baltimore SUN, (Dem.), holds that "if every official in Washington were impeached who is either an ignoramus or a politician, how many would be left to run the government? It would have been more than unfortunate if the Judiciary Committee had countenanced what looks like an attempt to terrorize a law officer of the Government and one of its judicial tribunals in the discharge of a public duty. Such a precedent would be most alarming and sinister."

IMPERSONATED RUSSIAN ROYALTY. London.—The Petrograd correspondent of the Post says: "New details in connection with the recent trial of the Penza Revolutionary Tribunal of Claudia Polikarpovich, Sasha Prudentov, and Pelageya Klimova, who have been sentenced to death for claiming to be, respectively, the late Empress of Russia, the Tsarevitch, and one of the late Tsar's daughters, are now available in the Moscow Press."

From facts disclosed at the trial it seems that in the summer of 1919 a rumor was circulated that the late Empress, her son, and one daughter were hiding from the Bolsheviks in the Holy Assumption Convent in the Kransnoblodsk district of the Penza Government. The local Cheka immediately proceeded to investigate the matter, and discovered that the woman, bearing the name of Claudia Polikarpovich, who bore a striking resemblance to the popular portraits of the late Empress, was staying at the convent and was the object of a widely-organized pilgrimage of the convent.

After her arrival the "Empress" was joined by the "Tsarevitch," the youth Prudentov, who was an ex-actor of a theological college and an amateur actor. Prudentov arrived at the convent in the guise of a pilgrim, and after the "Empress" had declared that he was her son, the nuns disguised him as a novice, and he remained in the convent. The third "pretender," Pelageya Klimova, was a former Red Cross nurse.

In December, 1919, the Cheka arrested the three pretenders, who were transferred to the Penza Prison, from which, with the connivance of the guards and warders, they soon escaped. For over two years they lived in hiding in the surrounding countryside, where the peasants vied with one another in giving them refuge. Finally the three were once more arrested and committed for trial together with the Mother Superior of the convent, six nuns, and ten peasants, who were accused of hiding and abetting the "pretenders."

SALVATION AND RENT. Salvation is free, but rent isn't, said the evangelist to the skeptic. The proposed cut of $1.00 and $2.00 a week from the pay of married and unmarried officers, respectively, of the Salvation Army is the same saying in another form. Fortunately, there is no talk of a strike. Knowing the notorious range of Salvation Army officers, we hesitate to think of what would happen if they struck and held mass meetings.

The difficulty of the Salvation Army in raising funds, a difficulty which, gossip says, has been aggravated by the Volstead law, will make some other churches, more elaborately organized and with more outward show, glow in sympathy. Few tents, set fees, strawberry festivals, sewing circles, and church bazaars are hints that, even if salvation is free, rent isn't and the men of the cloth must be supported. In our present, hardly perfect state, salvation and religious ministrations may be had free, but not as a regular thing and not by enrolled parishioners—they must pay for those who would have services gratis. Our churches are not organized and administered for business, but that does not mean that they lack a business organization and a business administration of the most effective kind. They must have it to survive.—BOSTON HERALD.

DUMB TAKE THE AIR-CURE. London.—The Croydon Air Station in becoming the Mecca of the afflicted who have read of aeroplane cures and are anxious to seek health up "in the blue."

The deaf and dumb, particularly, have great faith in the ability of aeroplane acrobatics to cure them. People who have been told by their medical advisers that the only hope they have of ever speaking or hearing is to receive some shock, are eager to try the effect of travelling in a small joy-ride aeroplane with the thrills of loops, spins and sudden dives. So far no cure have been reported.

Healthiest City

Sydney, Australia, claims it is the healthiest city in the world. Last year its death rate was only 19 out of each 2000 inhabitants.

However, there is no occasion to rush across Pacific. Only 26 out of each 2000 Americans die yearly. That is but seven above the world's healthiest city. And our death rate is being cut steadily.

Mark's have become so worthless in Germany that dealers at the Leipzig Fair refuse to accept them in payment for goods to be exported. They demand foreign money.

Samuel Montagu & Co., London foreign exchange house, says this is typical of the approaching situation all through Germany. The day in and out of German currency will be evitably not far off when the foreign holder of German marks even across the Rhine.

Ohio produces 48 per cent of the nation's entire output of rubber goods, says Department of Commerce.

There is no logical reason why Ohio should lead in this line, except that Ohio men decided to create the opportunity. Personality is the greatest force in business. And opportunity is where we make it, not far off over the hills.

A famous and powerful woman rises in the orient. She is Halide Edith Hanoum, the "Turkish Joan of Arc."

Halide is highly educated, magnetic, with a romantic career that includes exile, triumphant escape and a return to the leadership of her armies.

This woman probably soon will figure in newspaper headlines. Most interesting thing about her is that a beautiful Turkish woman, now can have a "career." Instead of being enslaved in the harem, emancipation of woman is reaching into the most remote places of the earth.

Marvelous discovery—something interesting about the tariff. Leeches are on the free list, after much debate. So is ice.

Volcanic lava in the raw state can be imported without paying duty, but a tariff levy is tacked on if the lava has been converted into sandpaper or other useful forms.

Eggs of fish and of wild birds and insects are on the free list. So are dog-bones, joss-sticks, and horsehair. The tariff-makers evidently considered everything that can come into America except air, rain and shadows.

A Pennsylvania lover, arrested by State Trooper Larsen, is fined $50 for the feat of driving his auto 50 miles an hour and kissing his girl every time a telephone pole flashed past.

Old-timers who recall moonlight buggies, slow rides and slow kisses, thus see another evidence of changing times—the introduction of "efficiency" in "sparkin'."

Sturkow-Ryder Plays 2 Pianos In Amazing Concert

Reproducing Piano, Using Rolls
Cut by Artist, Produce
Splendid Effect

With the assistance of an Apollo reproducing piano, Mme. Theodora Sturkow-Ryder, well known pianist, gave one of the most unusual and enjoyable concerts which has been heard in Appleton at Lawrence Memorial chapel on Monday evening.

Mme. Sturkow-Ryder is an artist of great ability and inspiration, and she has a winning personality which makes her audience her friends at once.

Most of the numbers which Mme. Sturkow-Ryder presented were arranged for two pianos and she played both instruments herself. This arrangement is possible with the assistance of the reproducing piano, the rolls for which are cut by great artists and then played by the piano with all the skill and personality of the maker. Mme. Sturkow-Ryder made the second piano part rolls for the reproducing and these were inserted in the instrument and then she played the first piano parts herself.

LIKE DUET NUMBERS

Although the artist is a wonderful musician herself and played several selections without the assistance of the second instrument, the audience manifested most enthusiasm about the duo piano numbers. The artist demonstrated several ways of using the piano in for instance playing the "Waltz, D Flat Major" from Chopin, she used the reproducing arrangement playing her part in thirds and sixths, which was below the score used by the piano. In other numbers she would play on the reproducing instrument and unless you watched her, you could not tell when she was playing and when the instrument was playing.

CAPTAINS LOYAL IN ARRANGING FOR 'Y' MEMBER DRIVE

Prospective Team Workers Are Selected At Meeting
Monday Night

One of the most perfect responses enjoyed by George F. Werner, general secretary of the Y. M. C. A., since conducting membership campaigns here was the meeting Monday evening of chairmen and capital for the drive opening Oct. 6.

Twenty-eight captains were notified to attend. Twenty-five were present and the other three sent representatives. H. W. Russell, associate general chairman, presided in the absence of T. E. Orblson, campaign chairman, who was obliged to be out of the city.

Captains chose a group of names from a list of prospective workers. From these groups they are to select six who will act on their teams. Each captain is given until 10 o'clock Thursday night to sign up the workers he has picked. The lists then will be thrown open and workers may be selected at random.

The color contest was given its tryout at the meeting, with each division chairman and his captains seated beneath the colors of his group. The colors will be orange, red, green and blue.

SPLENDID ACTING IS OFFERED IN "THE STORM"

The limited number of principals in the cast of "The Storm," Universal Jewel production which will be seen for the first time in Appleton at Fischer's Appleton Theatre Wednesday, gives each of the three featured players an unusual opportunity for making his acting stand out prominently. House Peters, the star, and Virginia Valli and Matt Moore make the most of their chances. They give a performance that is flawless from an artistic point of view and one hundred per cent in entertainment value.

The portrayal of the storm and fire scenes are master strokes of stage management and reflect great credit on Universal, Director Reginald Barker and his associates. None of the stupendous grandeur of Langdon McCormick's scenic spectacle has been lost in the film, rather it has been enhanced by virtue of the wider latitude given to the camera.

Not a Laxative

Nujol is a lubricant—not a medicine or laxative—so cannot gripe.

When you are constipated, not enough of Nature's lubricating liquid is produced in the bowel to keep the food waste soft and moving. Doctors prescribe Nujol because it acts like this natural lubricant and thus replaces it. Try it today.

My sisters also take your medicine and find it a great help, and I recommend it to those who suffer before their babies are born."—Mrs. WM. JOHNSON, Box 155, Park Rapids, Minn.

BISHOP DEDICATES NEW ADDITION TO KAUKAUNA SCHOOL

Impressive Ceremonies Mark Formal Completion of Building

Kaukauna—Dedication of the addition to Holy Cross graded school was held at 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon before a large assembly of members of the congregation and the clergy. The Rt. Rev. Bishop Paul Rhode of Green Bay was in charge of the ceremonies. A huge statue, entitled "The Good Shepherd," which is to be placed in the front of the church, also was blessed.

After the opening ceremonies in the church a procession was started from the church to the new school. In his dedication sermon, and address the Bishop called attention to the contribution which the Catholics make to the community by having such school. He stated that the entire cost of the school and its upkeep is borne by Catholics and that if the children who attend school there were sent to the public institution, the rate of taxation to each individual would be considerably higher than it is.

The addition to the school practically doubles the size of the building and provides accommodations for at least 600 pupils. The present enrollment is 450 so that the increase will be taken care of for several years. There are eight teachers, Dominican Sisters from Racine. The school is modern in every way. The old portion of the building was constructed in 1888.

After the blessing of the statue the services were closed with solemn benediction.

Among the visiting priests present were the Revs. F. X. Steinbrecher and Father Lagowski, St. Mary church; Anthony Koefler, Green Bay; Francis Van Nistlero, Kimberly; John Sprangers, Anthony Daniels, Little Chute; Adam Grill, Appleton; Van C'ander Boer, O. S. C. Anania, Minn.

START BANKS IN SCHOOLS TO BOOM GREATER THRIFT

Pupils Are Urged to Save Their Pennies for Deposit in School Banks

Kaukauna—Installation of the Thrift, Incorporated banking plan for pupils in Kaukauna public and parochial schools is practically completed and the first banking classes were to be held Tuesday and Wednesday mornings. The Thrift Incorporated, as it is called, enables the pupil to save his money in amounts from a penny up and deposit it in a bank at the usual rate of 3 per cent a year.

Bank deposit days or bank classes will be held Tuesday mornings in the grade schools and Wednesday mornings in the high school. All schools in the city have subscribed. The Bank of Kaukauna is headquarters for the plan.

Once each week the depositor takes his savings to the teacher who issues deposit slips and enters the amount in the pupil's pass book.

In the high school students will be elected as bank officers instead of the teachers. Thrift Incorporated banking plan has been installed in every city of any size in this state with the exception of Madison and Milwaukee.

GIRLS! LEMONS BLEACH SKIN WHITE

No wonder thin, skiny girls hate to get into a lemon. Squeeze the juice of two lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of Orchard White, which any drug store will supply for a few cents. Shake well, and you have a quart of harmless and delicious lemon bleach. Massage this sweetly fragrant lotion into the face, neck, arms and hands each day, then shortly note the beauty and whiteness of your skin.

Famous stage beauties use this lemon lotion to bleach and bring that soft, clear, rosy-white complexion, also as a freckle, sunburn, and tan bleach because it doesn't irritate.

YOUNGSTERS REGULAR IN SCHOOL ATTENDANCE

Few public or parochial school pupils are "playing hooky" these days, according to J. G. Pfeil, city trustee of Appleton. Practically the only cases that are under investigation are those in which parents are keeping their children from school and sending them to work, he said. There is the usual number of cases reported which turn out to be nothing but removals from the city to another school district. The compulsory education law will be enforced this year to the extent of requiring all children up to 15 years of age who have not completed nine years of the public school system attend either high school or the vocational school.

Harold Gossmann has returned to his home in Milwaukee after spending a week with friends and relatives here.

Science Will Tell If Youngster Is Musical

"There is no use, Willie just will not practice and he's so musical, too," sighs Mother to Father after the chil-dren have left them alone for a min-ute. "I have always wanted one of the boys to play the violin, but he just won't learn."

Nine times out of ten the reason that Willie doesn't practice is because there is no music in him, but Prof. Earle C. Baker, director of music at Appleton High school, will demon-strate tests of ability to parents to sat-isfy them. Prof. Baker will give to members of his high school chorus and to children from sixth grade up, the famous Seashore tests in the con-cert hall of Lawrence conservatory at 8:30 Tuesday.

FRANCE CUTTING EXPENDITURE FOR MAINTAINING ARMY

Reduction is Greater Than Any Other Country, Govern-ment Says

By Associated Press
Paris—France, "in spite of the heavy burdens which the care of en-suring her safety and of fulfilling her international obligations has imposed", is leading the world in the proportion-ate reduction of military expenditures, according to an official memorandum respecting the military budgets of 11 leading countries, compiled by the French government and submitted to The Associated Press.

Italy, with an increase of 390 per cent. in her war budget over the year 1913-14, stands far ahead on the list, the memorandum points out, while France, with an increase of but 52 per cent is at the bottom. Other countries, the compilation shows, range in the following order:
Japan, 290 per cent, Spain 275 per cent, Sweden 155 per cent, Great Brit-ain 181 per cent, United States 174 per cent, Denmark 125 per cent, and Switzerland 73 per cent.

Elaborating upon the French reduc-tion, the memorandum adds that in 1913 the military branch absorbed fully one-third of the general budget, or 1,657,574,736 francs from a total of 5,066,000,000. In 1922, with the mili-tary expenditures increased by various international obligations such as the maintenance of troops on the Rhine and elsewhere the defense arm required but one-fifth of the general appropria-tions, or 5,056,000,000 francs from a total of approximately 25,000,000,000 for the entire government.

The military expenditures of the five great powers based on a gold franc standard, are set forth in the mem-orandum as follows:

United States 6,100,000,000; Great Britain 4,300,000,000; Japan 1,900,000,000; France 1,823,000,000; Italy 370,000,000.

N. Y. WOULD LIKE TO SEE MILLER PRESIDENT

heard a vehement denunciation of lawless elements in America and a prediction that unless courageous men fought for law and order the na-tion's future would be imperiled.

One couldn't help asking Mr. Greiner as a typical political chief-tain how much he attributed the pres-ent tendency to override the law in labor troubles to the flagrant dis-respect of the law which the boot-legger has propagated. And Mr. Greiner answered that he wouldn't be surprised if popular notions of lawbreaking weren't on the increase because of it. He senses more un-rest than two years ago and insists that the big battle of the epoch be-tween labor and capital is yet to come.

MILLER AS CANDIDATE
Naturally Mr. Greiner is for Gov. Miller and naturally he would be one of the first to support President Harding for renomination if the lat-ter indicated the slightest desire to run for office again, but it's easy to see that the admiration for the New York governor's attitude toward labor troubles is more or less the same as that which endeared Calvin Coolidge to the conservative Repub-licans of Massachusetts and else-where. Mr. Miller is looked upon dis-tinctly as presidential calibre—and if reelected this fall will be a factor in the presidential contest of 1924, always assuming that Mr. Harding should voluntarily withdraw.

All Republican leaders of experience, however, feel that Mr. Harding is entitled the nomination for a sec-ond term if he wants it and they ad-mit it would be political suicide to choose anybody else because such a step would be repudiation of a Re-publican administration by the Re-publicans themselves and would court disaster at the polls.

From all indications congress will be judged harshly. Again and again one hears the cry of "Nothing out-standing done." Republican leaders and organization men privately con-cede that they expect greatly re-duced majorities for their candidates. This is a Republican stronghold but the drift of anti-Republicanism which has set in will make Republican con-gressional candidates hump to win. The situation here differs from that in other parts of the country where grievances were expressed at the pri-maries and punishment rendered. The organizations in both parties here dominated the primaries. The total vote in this section will be smaller and the protest or anti-Republican vote will be divided between Republi-can stay-at-homes, Socialists, Demo-crats who deserted their party two years ago and some straight Demo-cratic gains.

Prof. Baker is most anxious that parents who really would like to know about the musical inclinations of their children before they start to pay for lessons bring the children on Tuesday. The tests include those for pitch, rhythm, harmony, tonal memory and others, which will show scientifically the musical ability of the child. Adults, who are interested in taking the tests also are urged to make use of the opportunity.

All Lawrence Conservatory stu-dents will be given the tests in con-nection with their studies. Prof. Ba-ker has had a great deal of experience with testing children and students and feels certain the tests are an in-dication of ability or lack of it.

CHINESE LABOR UNIONS WINNING THEIR DEMANDS

Many Unions of China, Among Them School Teachers, Are Striking

By Associated Press
Hong Kong—The lowly Chinese wage-earner, perhaps the most abject of all the world's toilers, is just learn-ing of the power he is able to wield through the medium of organization, and like a great flood the movement to form various trade guilds is sweeping the country.

It was hardly more than a year ago that China witnessed its first impor-tant strike. Since then the larger cities have experienced walk-outs in-almost all classes of work, with the re-sult that business is demoralized, transportation is so uncertain that merchants refuse to ship, and in many cities the public health is menaced through strikes of street sweepers and water-works employees.

MANY ON STRIKE

At the present time in Canton the carpenters, painters, school teachers, butchers, street sweepers and city employees are on strike, while the seamen and luncheon, who but recently returned to work, are on the verge of another walk-out. The city of Macao is in the thick of a general strike which is almost a state of siege. The casualties to date have been 40 killed and nearly 200 injured.

The situation in this city is similar to that in Canton, although here even the beggars and thieves have formed unions which they are using for po-litical purposes. The sanitary condi-tion in Foochow, the purely Chinese section of Hong Kong, is said to be deplorable, as the street sweepers, gar-bage collectors and water carriers are out to a man.

The seamen's strike here has had a tremendous effect all over the Far East, as it has given the laborers con-fidence in their new guilds and stimu-lated their desire for better living con-conditions. The seamen have been so successful in forcing their demands that they now talk of going into the shipping business for themselves. The men are being asked to subscribe five dollars each, and judging from the eagerness with which they are re-sponding the backers of the project ex-pect soon to have a steamer running between here and Canton.

AMERICA CITED AS EXAMPLE FOR BRITISH BUSINESS

Growth of United States Called Most Marvellous Phenom-ena of Century

By Associated Press
London—As a "nation of shopkeep-ers" Britain perceives that she stands in need of increasing greatly her busi-ness with the world generally. Many men have maintained she could best learn how to do this from America, and not a few are arguing that she can become as prosperous as America only by adopting the American fiscal policy of protection.

But this is not the view held by the Right Honorable L. C. M. S. Amery, M. P., parliamentary secretary to the Admiralty. He believes much can be learned from America, but that the great lesson is not protection.

"The most marvellous economic phenomena of the last century is the growth of the United States," writes Mr. Amery. "From a handful of colonists on the Atlantic seaboard they have grown into a hundred millions of the most prosperous people in the world. They have achieved this amazing result by concentrating on the great purpose of the development of the resources of their great territory. It is development they have always kept in view, not trade, knowing that trade as an end in itself does not necessarily mean development and pros-perity, but that development inevit-ably brings both prosperity and trade."

"The resources of the British Em-pire are many times greater than those of the United States. If only we concentrate upon that develop-ment in the same spirit we shall see in the next generation a growth no less amazing than theirs, and one that would bring a wholly new and in-calculable expansion of outward trade and internal development to the coun-try."

This amazing performance was pos-sible through the Apollo Re-producing Piano.

THE OUTCASTS OF POKER FLAT

By BRET HARTE

COPYRIGHT BY HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN COMPANY, SOLE AUTHORIZED AGENTS IN AMERICA OF BRET HARTE'S WORKS. PUBLISHED BY ARRANGEMENT WITH THE LITERARY DIGEST NEWSPAPER SYNDICATE

AS Mr. John Oakhurst, gambler, stepped into the main street of Poker Flat on the morning of the 23rd of November, 1850, he was conscious of a change in its moral atmosphere since the preceding night. Two or three men, conversing earnestly together, ceased as he approached, and exchanged significant glances. There was a Sabbath lull in the air, which, in a settlement unused to Sabbath influence, looked ominous.

Mr. Oakhurst's calm, handsome face betrayed small concern in these indications. Whether he was conscious of any predisposing cause was another question. "I reckon they're after somebody," he reflected, "like I'm me." He returned to his pocket the handkerchief with which he had been wiping away the red dust of Poker Flat from his neat boots, and quietly discharged his mind of any further conjecture.

In point of fact, Poker Flat was "after somebody." It had lately suffered the loss of several thousand dollars, two valuable horses, and a prominent citizen it was experiencing a spasm of virtuous reaction, quite as lawless and ungovernable as any of the acts that had provoked it. A secret committee had determined to rid the town of all improper persons. This was done permanently in regard of two men who were then hanging from the boughs of a sycamore in the gulch, and temporarily in the banishment of certain other objectionable characters. I regret to say that some of these were ladies. It is but due to the sex, however, to state that their impropriety was professional, and it was in such a case that the committee had easily established standards of "evil" that Poker Flat ventured to sit in judgment.

Mr. Oakhurst was right in supposing that he was included in this category. A few of the committee had urged hanging him as a possible example and a sure method of reimbursing themselves from his pockets of the sums he had won from them. "It's a little justice," said Jim Wheeler, "to let this yer young man from Roaring Camp—an entire stranger—carry away our money." But a crude sentiment of equity had been in the breasts of those who had been fortunate enough to win from Mr. Oakhurst, and overruled this narrower local prejudice.

Mr. Oakhurst received his sentence with philosophic calmness, none the less coolly that he was aware of the hesitation of his judges. He was too much of a gambler not to accept fate. With him life was at best an uncertain game, and he recognized the usual percentage in favor of the dealer.

A body of armed men accompanied the deported coolness of Poker Flat to the outskirts of the settlement. Besides Mr. Oakhurst, who was known to be a coolly desperate man and for whose intimidation the armed escort was intended, the ex-patriated party consisted of a young woman familiarly known as "The Duchess," another who had won the title of "Mother Shipton," and "Uncle Billy," a suspected sluice-robbor and confirmed drunkard. The cavalcade provoked no comments from the spectators. Nor was any word uttered by the escort until the uttermost limit of Poker Flat was reached, the leader spoke briefly and to the point. The exiles were forbidden to return at the peril of their lives.

As the escort disappeared, their pent-up feelings found vent in a few hysterical tears from the Duchess, some bad language from Mother Shipton, and a Parthian volley of expletives from Uncle Billy. The philosophic Oakhurst alone remained silent. He listened calmly to Mother Shipton's desire to cut somebody's heart out, to the repeated statements of the Duchess that she would die in the road, and to the alarming oath that seemed to be burred out of Uncle Billy as he rode forward. With the easy good humor characteristic of his class, he insisted upon exchanging his own riding-horse, "Five Spot," for the sorry mule which the Duchess rode. But even this act did not draw the party into any closer sympathy. The young woman resented her somewhat dragged mother, with a feeble, faded coquetry. Mother Shipton eyed the possessor of "Five Spot" with malevolence, and Uncle Billy included the whole party in one sweeping anathema.

THE road to Sandy Bar—a camp that, not having as yet experienced the regenerating influences of Poker Flat, consequently seemed to offer some invitation to the emigrants—lay over a steep mountain range. It was distant a day's severe travel. In that advanced season the party soon passed out of the moist, temperate regions of the foothills into the dry, cold, bracing air of the Sierras. The trail was narrow and difficult. At noon the Duchess, rolling out of her saddle upon the ground, declared her intention of going no farther, and the party halted.

The spot was a singularly wild and impressive. A wooded amphitheater, surrounded on three sides by precipitous cliffs of naked granite, sloped gently toward the crest of another precipice that overlooked the valley. It was, undoubtedly, the most suitable spot for a camp, had camping been advisable. But Mr. Oakhurst knew the scarcely half the journey to Sandy Bar was accomplished, and the party were not equipped or provisioned for delay. This fact he pointed out to his companions curtly, with a philosophic commentary on the folly of "throwing up their hands before the game was played out." But which in this emergency stood them in spite of his food, and presence. In place of his remonstrances, it was not long before they were more or less under its influence. Uncle Billy passed rapidly from a bellicose state into one of stupor, the Duchess became maudlin, and Mother Shipton snored. Mr. Oakhurst alone remained erect, leaning against a rock, calmly surveying them.

Mr. Oakhurst did not drink. It interfered with a profession which required coolness, impassiveness, and presence of mind, and, in his own language, he "couldn't afford it." As he gazed at his recumbent fellow exiles, the loneliness begotten of his pariah trade, his habits of life, his very vices, for the first time seriously oppressed him. He bestowed himself in dusting his black clothes, washing his hands and face, and other acts characteristic of his studious neat habits, and for a moment forgot his annoyance. The thought of deserting his weaker and more pitiable companions never perhaps occurred to him. Yet he could not help feeling the want of that excitement which, singularly enough, was most conducive to that calm equanimity for which he was notorious. He looked at the gloomy walls that rose a thousand feet sheer above the circling pines around him, at the sky ominously clouded, at the valley below, already deepening into shadow and, doing so, suddenly he heard his own name called.

A horseman slowly ascended the trail. In the fresh, open face of the newcomer Mr. Oakhurst recognized Tom Simson, otherwise known as "The Innocent" of Sandy Bar. He had met him some months before over a "little game," and had, with perfect equanimity, won the entire fortune—amounting to some forty dollars—of that guileless youth. After the game was finished, Mr. Oakhurst drew the youthful speculator behind the door and thus addressed him: "Tommy, you're a good little man, but you can't gamble worth a cent. Don't try it over again." He then handed him his money back, pushing him gently from the room, and so made a devoted slave of Tom Simson.

There was a remembrance of this in his boyish and enthusiastic greeting of Mr. Oakhurst. He had started, he said, to go to Poker Flat to seek his fortune. "Alone?" No, not exactly alone; in fact (a giggle) he had run away with Piney Woods. Didn't Mr. Oakhurst remember Piney? She that used to wait on the table at the Temperance house? They had been engaged a long time, but old Jake Woods objected, and so they had run away, and were going to Poker Flat to be married, and here they were. And they were tired out, and how lucky it was they had found a place to camp, and company. All this the Innocent delivered rapidly, while Piney, a stout, comely dame of fifty, emerged from behind the pine-tree, where she had been blushing unseen, and rode to the side of her lover.

Mr. Oakhurst seldom troubled himself with sentiment, still less with propriety; but he had a vague idea that the situation was not for comfort. He retained, however, his presence of mind sufficiently to kick Uncle Billy, who was about to say something, and Uncle Billy was sober enough to recognize in Mr. Oakhurst's kick a superior power that would not bear trifling. He then endeavored to dissuade Tom Simson from delaying further, but in vain. He even pointed out the fact that there was no provision, nor means of making a camp. But, luckily, the Innocent met this objection by assuring the party that he was provided with an extra mule loaded with provisions, and by the discovery of a rude attraction as a log house near the trail, "Piney can stay with Mrs. Oakhurst," said the Innocent, pointing to the Duchess, "and I can shift for myself."

NOTHING but Mr. Oakhurst's admonishing foot saved Uncle Billy from bursting into a roar of laughter. As it was, he felt compelled to retire up the canon until he could recover his gravity. There he conferred the joke to the tall pine-trees, with many slaps of his legs, contortions of his face, and the usual profanity. But when he returned to the party, he found them seated by a fire—for the air had grown strangely chilly and the sky overcast—in apparently amicable conversation. Piney was actually talking in an impulsive girlish fashion to the Duchess, who was listening with an interest and animation she had not shown for many days. The Innocent was holding forth, apparently with equal effect, to Mr. Oakhurst and Mother Shipton, who was actually relaxing into amiability. "Is this yer a d—d plenty?" said Uncle Billy, with inward scorn, as he surveyed the new group, the glancing firelight, and the tethered animals in the foreground. Suddenly an idea mingled with the alcoholic fumes that disturbed his brain. It was apparently of a jocular nature, for he felt impelled to slap his leg again and cram his fist into his mouth.

As the shadows crept slowly up the mountain, a slight breeze rocked the tops of the pine-trees and moaned through their long and gloomy aisles. The ruined cabin, patched and covered with pine boughs, was set apart for the ladies. As the lovers paired, they unaffectedly exchanged a kiss, so honest and sincere that it might have been heard above the swaying pines. The tall Duchess and the malcontent Mother Shipton were probably too stoned to remark upon this last evidence of simplicity, and so turned without a word to the hut. The fire was replenished, the men lay down before the door, and in a few minutes were asleep.

Mr. Oakhurst was a light sleeper. Toward morning he awoke benumbed and cold. As he stirred the dying fire, the wind, which was now blowing strongly, brought to his cheek that which caused the blood to leave it—"snow!"

He started to his feet with the intention of awakening the sleepers, for there was no time to lose. But turning to where Uncle Billy had been lying, he found him gone. A suspicion leaped to his brain, and a curse to his lips. He ran to the spot where the mules had been tethered—they were no longer there. The tracks were already rapidly disappearing in the snow.

The momentary excitement brought Mr. Oakhurst back to the fire with his usual calm. He did not wake the sleepers. The Innocent slumbered peacefully, with a smile on his good-natured, freckled face; the virgin Piney slept, beside her frailer sisters as sweetly as though attended by celestial guardians; and Mr. Oakhurst, drawing his blanket over his shoulders, stroked his mustaches and waited for the dawn. It came slowly in a whirling mist of snowflakes that dazed and confused the eyes. What could be seen of the landscape appeared magically changed. He looked over the valley, and summed up the present and future in two words: "Snowed in!"

A careful inventory of the provisions, which, fortunately for the party, had been stored within the hut, and so escaped the felonious fingers of Uncle Billy, disclosed that fact that with care and prudence they might last ten days longer. "That is," said Mr. Oakhurst sotto voce to the Innocent, "if you're willing to board us. If you ain't—and perhaps you'd better not—you can wait till Uncle Billy gets back with provisions." For some reason, Mr. Oakhurst could not bring himself to disclose Uncle Billy's rascality, and so offered the hypothesis that he had wandered from the camp and had accidentally trapped the animals. He dropped a warning to the Duchess and Mother Shipton, who of course knew the facts of their associate's defection. "They'll find out the truth about us all when they find out anything," he added significantly, "and there's no good frightening them now."

TOMMY Simson not only put all his worldly store at the disposal of Mr. Oakhurst, but seemed to enjoy the prospect of their enforced seclusion. "We'll have a good camp for a week, and then the snow'll melt, and we'll all go back together." The cheerful safety of the young man and Mr. Oakhurst's calm infected the others. The Innocent, with the aid of pine boughs, extemporized a perch for the roofless cabin, and the Duchess directed Piney in the rearrangement of the interior with the taste and tact that opened the eyes of that provincial maiden to their fullest extent. "I reckon now you're used to fine things at Poker Flat," said Piney. The Duchess turned away sharply to conceal something that reddened her cheeks through their professional tint, and Mother Shipton turned to "chatter." But when Mr. Oakhurst returned from a weary search for a trail, he heard the sound of happy laughter echoed from the rocks. He stopped in some alarm, and his thoughts first naturally reverted to the whiskey, which he had prudently cached. "And yet it don't seem to me like whiskey," said the gambler. It was not until he caught sight of the blazing fire, through the still blinding snow, and the group around it, that he settled to the conviction that it was "square fun."

Whether Mr. Oakhurst had cashed his cards with the whiskey as something debarring the free access of the community, I cannot say. It was certain that, in Mother Shipton's words, he didn't say "cards" once during that evening. Happily the time was beguiled by an accordion, produced somewhat ostentatiously by Tom Simson from his pack. Notwithstanding some difficulties attending the manipulation of this instrument, Piney Woods managed to pluck several reluctant melodies from its keys, to an accompaniment by the Innocent on a pair of bone castanets. But the crowning festivity of the evening was reached in a rude camp-meeting hymn, which the lovers, joining hands, sang with great earnestness and vociferation. I fear that a certain defiant tone and Covenanters' swing to its chorus, rather than any devotional quality, caused it speedily to infect the others, who at last joined in the refrain:

"I'm proud to live in the service of the Lord,
And I'm bound to die in His army."

The third day came, and the sun, looking through the white-curtained snow, saw the outcasts divide their slowly decreasing store of provisions for the morning meal. It was one of the peculiarities of that mountain climate that its rays diffused a kindly warmth over the wintry landscape, as if in regretful commiseration of the past. But it revealed drift on drift—a hopeless, uncharted, trackless sea of white lying below the rocky shores to which the castaways still clung. Through the marvelously clear air the smoke of the pastoral village of Poker Flat rose miles away. Mother Shipton saw it, and from a remote pinnacle of her rocky fastness hurled in that direction a final malediction. It was her last vituperative attempt, and perhaps for that reason was invested with a certain degree of sublimity. It did her good, she privately informed the Duchess, "just you go out there and cuss, and see."

She then set herself to the task of amusing "the child," as she and the Duchess were pleased to call Piney. Piney was so chicken, but it was a soothing and original theory of the pair thus to account for the fact that she didn't swear and wasn't proper.

WHEN night crept up again through the gorges, the ready notes of the accordion rose and fell in fitful spasms and long-drawn gasps by the flickering campfire. But music failed to fill entirely the aching void left by insufficient food, and a new diversion was proposed by Piney—story-telling. Neither Mr. Oakhurst nor his female companions caring to relate their personal experiences, their plan would have failed too, but for the Innocent. Some months before he had chanced upon a stray copy of Mr. Pope's ingenious translation of the Iliad. He now proposed to narrate the principal incidents of that poem—having thoroughly mastered the arguments and fairly forgotten the words—in the current vernacular of Sandy Bar. And so for the rest of that night the Homeric demigods again walked the earth, Trojan bully and wily Greek and all all go back together. The cheerful safety of the young man and Mr. Oakhurst's calm infected the others. The Innocent, with the aid of pine boughs, extemporized a perch for the roofless cabin, and the Duchess directed Piney in the rearrangement of the interior with the taste and tact that opened the eyes of that provincial maiden to their fullest extent. "I reckon now you're used to fine things at Poker Flat," said Piney. morning, looking into each other's faces, they read their fate. Neither spoke, but Piney, accepting the position of the stronger, drew near and placed her arm around the Duchess' waist. They kept this attitude for the rest of the day. That night the storm reached its greatest fury, and, rending asunder the protecting vines, invaded the very hut.

Toward morning they found themselves unable to feed the fire, which gradually died away. As the embers slowly blackened, the Duchess crept closer to Piney, and broke the silence of many hours: "Piney, can you pray?" "No, dear," said Piney, simply. The Duchess, without knowing exactly why, felt relieved, and, putting her head upon Piney's shoulder, spoke no more. And so reclining, the younger and purer following the lead of her soiled sister upon her virgin breast, they fell asleep.

The wind lulled a little, and the snow, shaken from the long pine boughs, flew like white winged birds, and settled about them as they slept. The moon through the rifted clouds looked down upon what had been the camp. But all human stain, all trace of earthly travail, was hidden beneath the spotless mantle meretriciously flung from above.

They slept all that day and the next, nor did they waken when voices and footsteps broke the silence of the camp. And when waking fingers brushed the snow from their wan faces, you could scarcely have told from the equal peace that dwelt upon them which was she that had sinned. Even the law of Poker Flat recognized this, and turned away, leaving them still locked in each other's arms.

But at the head of the gulch, on one of the largest pine-trees, they found the device of clubs pinned to the bark with a bowie-knife. It bore the following, written in pencil in a firm hand:

Beneath this tree
Lies the body of
John Oakhurst,
Who struck a streak of bad luck
on the 23d day of November, 1850,
and Handed in his checks
on the 7th December, 1850.
And pulseless and cold, with a der-ranger by his side and a bullet in his heart, though still calm as in life, beneath the snow lay he who was at once the strongest and yet the weakest of the outcasts of Poker Flat.

"Knowledge is Power"

The knowledge that proves of any worth, of any power, to those who are looking for health, is the knowledge that brings practical results.

Chiropactic knowledge gives the most wonderful power in bringing the sick back to health.

Destroy a nerve and that part of the body which that nerve supplies, becomes functionless. And to the extent that any part of your body becomes functionless, to that extent there exists a condition of disease.

Pressure on a nerve may cause complete or partial loss of function. The severity of disease is dependent upon the degree of pressure, the location and area affected, and the length of time this condition has existed.

Germs, if present, come in when conditions are found favorable for location, as destroyed tissues for food, etc. Restore normal nerve function, bring tissues back to health and germs cannot exist.

No other methods used but those sanctioned by the highest authorities on Chiropactic of today.

8-HOUR DAY IS IN EUROPE TO STAY LEADERS DECLARE

17 Nations Already Have It—America Can't Bind Self To It

Special to Post-Crescent
LONDON—The eight-hour day for industrial workers is in Europe to stay.

This is the judgment of legislators and labor leaders in spite of attacks in some quarters and the failure of most nations to ratify the action of the International Labor Conference.

October will see the third anniversary of the Washington conference, with these results:

Only four nations—Czechoslovakia, Greece, Rumania and Bulgaria—have formally ratified the eight-hour day convention, and none of them propose to put it into full effect until July 1, 1924.

U. S. CAN'T SIGN
America found itself unable to sign because the federal government could not bind the individual states to any law regulating labor.

Other nations have remained out because they are afraid to bind themselves so long as business rivals do not sign.

One nation only—Germany—is planning national legislation embodying the terms of the Washington conference.

Labor in Europe is satisfied, however, for it is pointed out that 17 nations already have the eight-hour day, though not based on the conference convention.

Russia and Finland got it in the autumn of 1917. After the armistice Germany proclaimed a maximum working day of eight hours taking effect Jan. 1, 1919. By the end of 1918 similar action had been taken in Austria, Czechoslovakia, Poland and Luxembourg. In 1919 it was extended to France, Holland, Norway, Portugal, Sweden and Switzerland and last year to Belgium.

FOUND IN ENGLAND
The eight-hour day prevails widely in England unofficially. Denmark has a collective agreement between a federation of employers and the Danish Trades Union, while in Italy there is a series of collective agreements in various industries.

Opponents of labor's new "charter of liberty" exist in several countries. The French parliament has hung up several bills for the extension of the eight hour principle because it is claimed it has cost railways an additional 1100 million francs per year; has helped retard recovery of French trade, and has drawn 100,000 men up to railway payrolls from agricultural ranks.

DECREASES OUTPUT
Holland is leaning toward an eight and a half hour day and increased overtime, with suspension of the law to protect national industries against foreign competition.

Switzerland also has this suspension provision, and during the past year the working week was increased from 48 hours to 52 hours in such trades as wood sawing, carpentry brick and tile making, embroidery and linen.

A German employers association reports 2,351,000 employees are working less than 48 hours a week, and 4,216,000 have the 48 hour week, the former group including miners, textile workers, and wood and metal workers.

CARRY PICTURES; TRAFFIC IS HELPED

Special to Post-Crescent
New York—New York motorists have resigned themselves to the duty of carrying their photographs with them and counting the increased number of traffic warnings stamped on their identification cards.

This additional worry has been heaped on automobile owners who are residents of the metropolis.

At first there was a general howl from all parts of the city. Branding the motorist by photograph was only a step below that of the finger print method they cried. A test case was planned in an attempt to abolish the ordinance. But the city is still enforcing the rule.

LIKE LONDON
The system is similar to that in force in London. Each motorist and driver of a horse drawn vehicle supplies himself with an identification card, a duplicate of which is on file in the New York traffic bureau. His photograph is placed on each card and with it is a description of the older, his license number and other distinguishing facts.

Below his identification there are five blank spaces where record is kept of any minor traffic violation by the holder. It is a method of police warnings, five of which constitute sufficient cause for summoning an offender to court.

There are 16 minor offenses, the violation of which are noted on these cards. They run anywhere from having a smoking engine to driving too close to a street car.

OPERATION
A policeman stopping a person for a violation enters it on the driver's card and notifies the Traffic Bureau. There the entry is made on the duplicate card on file.

When the card is filled, the motorist is brought to traffic court where infractions are reviewed and a penalty is imposed. Then a new card is issued. But a record of previous fractions are made on the new card in this way.

In this way, a driver who has been warned too often could be held for a major offense and would be liable to have his license revoked.

What has plagued those subject to the ordinance is the fact that it applies only to residents of the city. Non-residents may procure identification cards for their own convenience, but only a few outsiders have taken advantage of this option.

MONK REBEL, BACK FROM PRISON GETS OVATION IN BURMA

Town Of Mandalay Goes Wild Over Leader Against British Rule

Mandalay, Burma—Mandalay gave the greatest ovation in its history recently to U. Ottama, the Burmese monk and Nationalist leader, who came to the city from the Maubin jail where he had been shut away for his political activities.

The city went wild, for Mandalay at the railroad station U. Ottama was placed in a palanquin and carried through the streets. Eight thousand monks and 50,000 people lined the way to greet him. There were many flags, much bunting, and countless political mottoes hanging from trees. Women threw flowers and rice in front of U. Ottama presenting him with gifts, and distributing fans, betel nuts, cold drinks and tea among the marchers. There was singing all along the line of march, and music from Burmese bands.

DELIVERS SPEECH
U. Ottama was called upon to make an address. He dwelt upon the country's national aspirations.

"There has come a distinct change in the mentality of the Burmese people," he said. "The old cringing before a sunburnt autocrat has given place to a manlier outlook. We have begun to take active interest in every thing that happens in Burma as well as India."

EX-KAISER'S FIANCEE IS NURSE FOR A WHILE

Two of the men were seriously wounded. The hunting lodge on the estate was used to lodge the four men. The princess who was returning from a visit to the Grand Duchess of Baden, hastened with her children to attend to their needs. Pilot Strunk who carried Enver Pasha to Moscow when the latter succeeded in escaping from his Turkish countrymen, was one of the quartet.

Sheriffs, coroners, registers of deeds, district attorneys, and all other county officers except judicial officers, shall be chosen by the electors of the respective counties once in every two years. Sheriffs shall hold no other office and may succeed themselves; they may be required by law to renew their security from time to time, and in default of giving such new security their office shall be deemed vacant; but the county shall never be made responsible for the acts of the sheriff. The governor may remove any officer in this section mentioned, giving to such a copy of the charges against him and an opportunity of being heard in his defense. All vacancies shall be filled by appointment, and the person appointed to fill a vacancy shall hold only for the unexpired portion of the term to which he shall be appointed and until his successor shall be elected and qualified."

Resolved by the Assembly, the Senate concurring, That the foregoing proposed amendment to the constitution of the state of Wisconsin be and the same is hereby agreed to by this legislature.

NOTE.—(Under the present provisions of the constitution, sheriffs in office are ineligible to hold the office of sheriff for two years next succeeding the termination of their terms. If this proposed amendment is ratified by the people, sheriffs will be permitted to succeed themselves.) (Jt. Res. No. 16, A.)

"They were clever people, far more clever than poor provincials like us." She took a moment for thought. "But I am puzzled by their harping on the subject of—I think they called him the Lone Wolf. Now why should they do that?"

Duchemin was constrained to take refuge in another "if they were as clever as we assume, doubtless they were clever enough to have a motive even for that."
"He really existed, this Lone Wolf?"
"Assuredly, madame. For years he was the nightmare and the scourge of people of wealth in every capital of Europe."
"Why did they call him the Lone Wolf, do you know?"

"I believe because he fell in love and considered good faith with the object of his affections incompatible with a career of crime."
"So he gave up crime. How romantic! And the woman: did she appreciate the sacrifice?"
"While she lived, yes, madame. Or so they say. Unfortunately, she died."
"And then—?"

"So far as is known the converted enemy to Society did not backslide; the Lone Wolf never prowled again."
"An extraordinary story!"
"But is not every story that has to do with the workings of the human soul? Even you—A woman of your sort renouncing the world, renouncing life itself in its very being—"

"I will explain." The sleekly coiffured brown head bent low over hands that played absently with their jewels. "To a woman of my sort, Monsieur, life is not life without love. I lived once for a little time, then love was taken out of my life. When my sorrow had spent itself, I knew that I must find love again if I were to go on living. What was I to do? I know that love is not found through seeking. So I waited."

"But this is not writing to my bankers, monsieur," she said in a changed but steady voice. "I must do that at once if I am to get the letter in today's post."
CHAPTER IX
The Blow From the Dark
In short, Monsieur Duchemin considered convalescence at the Chateau de Montalais one of the most agreeable of human estates.
But now an end. Tomorrow the detectives commissioned by Madame de Montalais would arrive. Tomorrow Eve would set out on her journey to Paris. Tomorrow Andre Duchemin must walk forth from the Chateau de Montalais and turn his back on all that was most dear to him in life.

On that last night, Eve smoked only one cigarette with Duchemin in the drawing room after dinner, then excused herself to wait on Madame de Sevigne and finish her packing. "I shall miss you, monsieur. The chateau will seem lonely when I return."
"And the world, madame," said Duchemin—"the world into which I must go—it, too, will seem a lonely place—a desert, haunted—"
"You will soon forget—Chateau de Montalais!"
"Forget when all I shall have will be my memories—"
"Yes," she said, "we shall both have memories—And suddenly the rich, deep voice quoted in English: 'Memories like almighty wine.'"

She offered to disengage her hand, but Duchemin tightened gently the pressure of his fingers, bowing over it. His lips touched her hand for a moment, then he released it. She went swiftly to the door, faltered, turned.
"We shall see each other in the morning—to say au revoir. With us, monsieur, it must never be adieu."
She was gone; but she had left Duchemin with a singing heart when he would not let him sleep when he had gone to bed.

Till long after midnight he tossed restlessly, bedeviled alternately by melancholy and exhilaration.
He heard the clock strike two, and shortly after, in a fit of exasperation, lighted the candle, found his book, and fumbled vainly for a cigarette.

What greater folly could there be than to want a cigarette and do without one when there were plenty in the drawing room, to be had for the taking? He rose and left his chamber.

Shielding the candle flame with his hand, he gained the drawing room as noiselessly as any ghost.
The fire had died down till only embers glowed, faint under tulle of ash.

The cigarettes were not where he had expected to find them, near one end of a certain table. Duchemin put down the candlestick and moved toward the other end, discovering the box he sought as soon as his back was turned to the light. In the same breath this last went out.

He stood for a moment transfixed in astonishment. There were no windows open, no draughts. An insane thing to happen to one, at such an hour, in such a place—
He turned back to relight the candle. It was gone.

Duchemin straightened up sharply, and stood quite still, listening. No sound.

His vision spent itself fruitlessly against the blackness, which the closed window draperies rendered absolute but for those dull, sardonic eyes of dying embers.

In spite of himself he knew a moment when flesh crawled and the hair seemed to stir upon the scalp; for Duchemin knew he was not alone; there was something else in the room with him, something nameless, steadily, silent, sinister.

A hand extended about a foot encountered the back of an upholstered chair, which he identified by touch. Assuming the chair to be occupying its usual position, he need only continue in a line parallel with the line of its back to find the entrance-hall in about six paces.

Within three he stopped dead, as if paralyzed by sudden instinctive perception of that other presence close by.

Whether he had drawn near to it, inch by inch, or whether it, seeing him about to make good his escape, had crept up on him, he could not say. He only knew that it was there, within arm's length, waiting, tense, prepared, and somehow deadly in its animosity.

Digging the nails deep into the palms of his hands until the pain relieved his nervous tension, he waited once more, one minute, two, three.
But nothing—
Then very slowly he lifted an arm, and swept it before him right and left. At one point of the arc, a trifle to his left, his fingertips brushed something. He thought he detected a stir in the darkness, a stifled sound stepped forward quickly, clawing the air, and caught between his fingers a wisp of some material, like silk, sheer and glacial, a portion of some garment.

Simultaneously he heard a smothered cry, of anger or alarm, and the night seemed to split and be rent into fragments by a thousand shooting needles of colored flame.
Smitten brutally on the point of the jaw, his head jerked back, he reeled and fell against a chair, which went to the floor with a muffled crash.

CHAPTER X
A Woman's Faith
Duchemin woke up in his bed, glare of sunlight in his eyes. He groaned aloud and with both hands clutched temples that promised to split with pain that crashed between them, stroke upon stroke, like blows of a mighty hammer.

Also, his jaw was stiff, and developed a protesting ache whenever he opened his mouth.

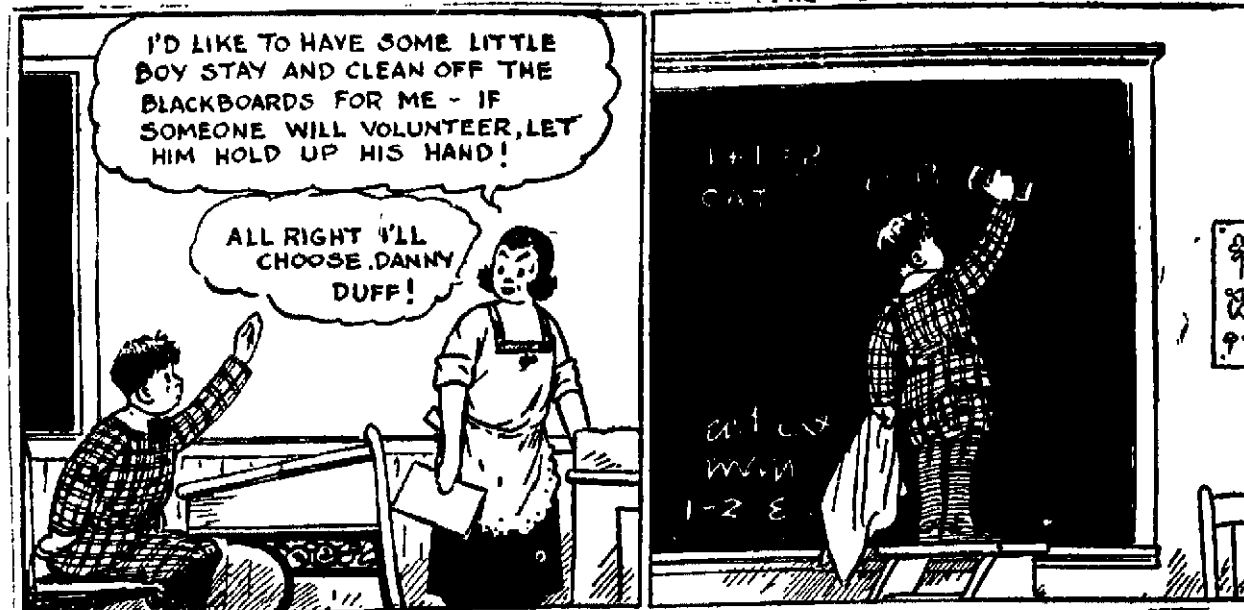

Then Duchemin remembered—He got up hastily and spent several thrilling minutes under an icy shower and emerged feeling more on terms with himself and the world.
The valet-de-chamber brought with his tray the announcement that Madame de Montalais presented her compliments and would be glad to see monsieur at his convenience in the grand salon. So Duchemin made short work of his dressing, his coffee and roll and hurried down to the drawing room.

Her profound reverie disturbed by his approach, she rose quickly, advancing to meet Duchemin with both hands offered in sympathy.
"My dear friend! You are suffering—"

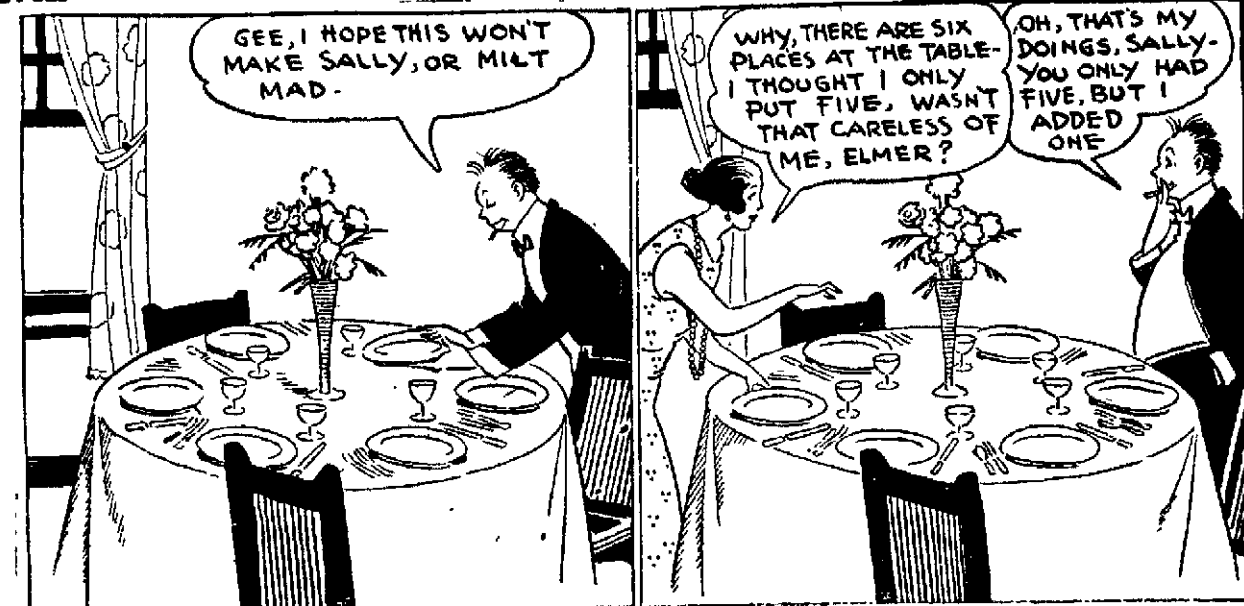

He met this with a smiling denial. "Not now; at first, yes; but since my bath and coffee, I'm as right as a trivet. But madame is not dressed for her journey!"

"No, monsieur. I have postponed it— a slight pause preface one more word—'Indefinitely.'"
At this confirmation of the fears which had been haunting him, Duchemin nodded slightly.

SHE KNEW WHIMS OF CHILDREN; NOW HAS TOY FACTORY

Funny Little Toys Keep 28 People Busy in Mrs. Jane Gray's "Studio"

BY MARIAN HALE
A genuine understanding of children and what they like made Jane Gray realize 11 years ago that they did not have exactly the right sort of toys to play with. So she went into business to make better ones.

A genuine understanding of grown-ups made her realize that the ordinary factory doesn't afford its workers an opportunity for a great deal of joy, so she decided to provide something better.

The result is that her funny little toys—those rabbits, cats, soft dolls and Mother Goose characters she has originated—are made in a studio in stead of a factory.

And the 28 people who make them work in a light, airy room bright with color, and they laugh and joke and sing as they convert old cloth and chintz into durable costumes, and paint grotesque faces on cloth babies.

A SERIOUS TOYMAKER

"I have a sentiment about my toys," Jane Gray explained to me. She's a serious person in spite of her fanciful toys but she has the enthusiasm of a child.

"I make toys because I love children and I love Mother Goose. I want to make a great many children happy by providing them these soft toys that won't break, but have such an appeal to their imaginations and make such splendid playmates."

"I design these with the children in mind, not the dealers who sell them."

"I want all the people who work on these toys really to love children and to get a satisfaction from working for them. I want to know they are all healthy and satisfied. If they are not that way when they come I try to make them so, or I let them go."

CAREFUL ABOUT EMPLOYEES

"I am careful about the people I employ, but when they are admitted to the studio they are made one of our family."

"In my 11 years of making toys I have never yet put one thing under lock and key and I never expect to. I've never had so much as a yard of ribbon stolen."

"For the girls in my employ I get the benefit of all reductions and advantages having I myself get. I help them all with their home problems and have influenced all of them to start bank accounts."

"There is really nothing about the toy business I can do myself except the very fine art work."

"If we are short a stuffer or a cutter I take the place."

"I always work right with my employees and know what they want. I employ no forewomen, inspectors or spies. I have never found them necessary."

"TOPIAN BUT PROFITABLE," All this sounds rather Utopian, but Jane Gray, who is really Mrs. Stokes, assures me it is all very profitable, too. She started the soft toy business in this country and has revolutionized the toy industry. And she has found friends and fortune.

Her latest product is a Puss in Boots with radium eyes which she enjoys as much as a child herself.

"I should consider myself a failure, though," she says. "If I made money without making happiness for those who work with me and for the little ones who get my products."

Gypsy Moth To Flee; Doctor Finds Enemy

Washington—Antateles fulvipes is here from Japan. Suffice it to say that Antateles fulvipes is an insect. It is not here in large numbers yet—a few thousands only. These thousands are however are counted on to increase and multiply.

Antateles fulvipes was brought to America by Dr. I. N. Summers of the Bureau of Entomology.

To the doctor was assigned the task of finding out some sort of bug to exterminate the gypsy moth. He hunted over many parts of the earth for several years before deciding on Antateles fulvipes. The latter, he says, will be bothering the gypsy moth soon as much as the gypsy moth has bothered New England farmers.

In the past, such experiments have not always been satisfactory, the insects imported into the country to exterminate certain pests having proved, in the long run, to be worse pests than the pests they exterminated. This will not be the case, Dr. Summers says, with Antateles fulvipes.

EASY TO HANDLE FLAPPERS

MISS JEAN HAMILTON

Ann Arbor, Mich.—As the new dean of women in the University of Michigan, Miss Jean Hamilton finds her self in the position of advisor, mentor and first friend of hundreds of impressionable college girls.

It goes without saying that she has ideas about flappers. One of them is that "must" and "must not" are words that seldom should be utilized by a woman in her position.

Young people resent the common criticisms of their elders because of the relative importance of things," says she.

"Eyebrow pencils and lipstick are not moral issues. So why waste ammunition on little rabbits when you might need it later for big game?"

All too often when older persons lay down the law for the young woman to follow blindly their laws are based on personal likes and dislikes instead of real moral foundations. If I succeed in getting across to my girls an idea that is four square to the world, it is because the idea itself possesses authority rather than I."

Jean Hamilton is god to look at. Her hair is soft and brown. Her eyes are those of a woman who understands the complexities of others. And when her face is lighted by her smile, the beholder instinctively knows that Jean Hamilton is not one of those who have "a little sense of the relative importance of things."

Miss Hamilton was graduated from Vassar in 1900 receiving an M. A. from the same college a year later after which she became executive secretary of the National League of Girls' Clubs where she gained training and experience for her new position here.

Adventures Of The Twins

Would Keep Mink Ill

Dr. Snuffles and Nancy and Nick went off through the woods to the place where Marty Mink lived near Ripple Creek.

Marty had swallowed a fish bone and the fairy doctor man was going to take it out.

The news had spread all through Whispering Forest and Bright Meadowland and Old Orchard and even to Lily Pond, for Scramble Squirrel had been in the doctor's office and heard about it.

"We'll have to hurry," said Dr. Snuffles, "for poor Marty can't eat until I get the fish bone out."

But secretly had he spoken when Mrs. Bunny called out of her front door (they were just passing the Ben Bunny house) and asked the doctor please to stop in and see how fat the baby was getting.

"It will only take a minute," said Dr. Snuffles, "and we can't afford to offend a good customer—I mean patient. Come along, children."

But Mrs. Bunny had to tell them a million things about how cute Marty Jr. was getting—how he'd cut his little teeth, and how he'd learned to flop his ears and wiggle his nose and how soft his fur was and how his whiskers were growing and how he'd learned to chew plantain and everything.

Dr. Snuffles kept looking at his watch and saying yes, yes, what a fine boy Benny Was, but he'd really have to be going.

Nancy and Nick kept thinking of poor Marty Mink and his fish bone and they really thought Mrs. Bunny would never get done talking.

But at last they got away. Then a funny thing happened. Mrs. Bunny tore out of her back door and took a short cut to Mrs. Woodchuck's "St. St." she called. "You there, Wilhelmina! Say, here comes Dr. Snuffles and his helpers. I kept him as long as I could, and now it's your turn."

"The longer we can keep him from getting that fish bone out of Marty's throat the longer he'll have to do without a meal and the longer our children will be safe!"

She swam in the Aldershot Command Baths. The previous record was one minute thirty-seven and three-fifths seconds by Miss Van Bogaert, on July 22 last.

Household Hints

PAISLEY AND SERGE
Nothing adds more pep to a serge or twill frock than the lavish use of Paisley silk which features red. This is one of the most successful combinations of the year.

PARIS CORSETS
Some recent corset importations from Paris are made of most elaborate fabrics with higher tops and a more definite waistline than we have seen in many a day.

STREET FROCKS
Many of the smart street frocks of wool are entirely embroidered in silk floss or elaborately beaded in rather large wooden beads.

RHINESTONES
Rhinestone buckles and straps are seen on many of the gowns of gold and silver tissue. Frequently small stones outline patterns on the fabric.

STUFFED PEPPERS

BY BERTHA E. SHAPLEIGH

6 large sweet green peppers
1 cup macaroni
1 small onion
2 tablespoons butter or oil
Salt, pepper
1 cup bread crumbs or
½ cup grated cheese
Wash, wipe and cut the peppers in halves lengthwise. Remove seeds and inside pulp and sprinkle with salt.

Break macaroni in small pieces and cook until soft in boiling salted water. Drain season well with salt and pepper.

Stuff peppers with macaroni. Cover each pepper with bread crumbs mixed with a little melted butter, or with the cheese.

Place in a pan adding just enough water to prevent burning and bake until peppers are soft. Serve with a fresh tomato sauce.

If one does not wish to serve a sauce with the peppers mix the macaroni with enough cooked tomato to moisten.

Cooked rice may be used instead of the macaroni.

$32 A MONTH WAS GOOD PAY TO MICHAEL ANGELO

By Associated Press

Rome—Modern artists who are inclined to complain of the lack of appreciation of the public expressed in dollars and cents of their work, may be interested in the money made by some of their famous predecessors.

The ancient masters of painting labored for small pay. Cimabue, the first of the great masters and the discoverer of Giotto was paid about one dollar a day but he had to share this in come with an assistant. Giotto himself called the father of painting and the producer of many fine masterpieces got from $5.00 to $11.00 for each of his figures. Michael Angelo, Leonardo da Vinci and Raphael lived in what may be called the golden age, yet the first two received salaries of $32.00 a month, and the last named got $250.000 for a portrait.

MARRIAGE A LA MODE

Among the Greeks we find this queer custom.

Immediately after the wedding ceremony the bride's father or mother, one of her sisters and hands it to the bridegroom.

The bridegroom touches her lightly upon the head with it in token of his ownership and authority. Then they repair to the wedding feast.

THE MARRIAGE SHIP

Chapter 21 — Catastrophe

By Zoe Beckley

"Connie Connie!" Fred's cry resounded through the little flat, though he knew at once it was deserted. Hollow silence mocked him, made him sick with despair. Then he sprang for the telephone, but the girl's casual "Mrs. Die left in a taxi ten minutes ago—didn't leave no message!" left him more desolate than before.

Unreasonably, Fred turned and rushed out to hunt. Which way to turn? The railroad back to Homerville seemed the likeliest clew. Fred reached the huge terminal, scanning every face in the crowd for full three quarters of an hour, until the Overland Limited, the one direct train to Connie's old home, had left. No sign of her.

Perhaps a hotel? Which? He pelted to the one at which he and Connie in happy times weeks before had stayed. She was not there. He tried a dozen others. No Connie. The police? Useless on so slight a clew—a girl with a bag! He would have to wait until she attempted something that would bring her to the notice of the police—Oh God, send that she do herself no harm!

Fred dragged himself home, a physical, nervous, emotional wreck. Fully dressed he flung himself on his bed and slept in utter exhaustion. In the morning the absence of Connie rushed in on him with a sense of world catastrophe. Connie had been away from him all night—where?

He dashed off a telegram to his wise old sea-captain uncle: "Connie has left me. For God's sake help me find her. Wire if she arrives Homerville. Distraught Fred."

He could not force himself to go to the office, to show his haggard face, to explain what had happened. He stayed home, putting in an endless day of torment. As he sat, head in hands and numb with misere, the sound of a key in the lock sent him trembling to his feet.

"Connie! Oh, my girl!" But Connie stood there without her bag, quite cold, unrepenting, even disapproving regarding him steadily. Fred fell back, the reaction of his joy sending him into a sort of chok ing rage. How could Connie stand there unmoved before the haggard

LEARN A WORD EVERY DAY

Today's word is—PUSILLANIMITY. It's pronounced—pu si la-ni-mi-ti, with accent slightly upon the first and more strongly upon the fourth syllable.

It means—weakness of spirit, cowardice, destitution of manly strength and firmness.

It comes from a combination of the Latin words "pusillus" meaning "mind."

It's used like this—"Editorial writers generally agree that the present serious situation at Constantinople is due mainly to the pusillanimity of the European governments' policy there."

ENGLISH LABOR PARTY SELECTS SOCIETY WOMEN

Daughter of British Aristocracy Candidate for Parliamentary Office

By Associated Press
London—That the political party which above all parties stands for the hard-fisted sons of toil should put forward as one of its parliament ary candidates a member of the social elect and a woman at that may be regarded as one of the significant signs of the times. It is not because of any dearth of good parliamentary material among its own ranks that the Labor party has adopted Miss Edith Picton-Turbervill as its candidate for North Islington at the next general election.

Miss Picton-Turbervill is the daughter of Colonel Picton-Turbervill of Ewenny, Priory, Glamorganshire. Among the many claims of long descent, there are few among the British aristocracy who can trace their lineage so far back as can Miss Picton-Turbervill and find such a notable beginning of it. One of her ancestors was Sir Richard Turbervill one of the 12 knights of William the Conqueror who settled in Wales soon after the conquest.

INTERNATIONALLY KNOWN—Miss Picton-Turbervill is the author of "Christ and International Life" to which Lord Robert Cecil contributed a preface. Her social work abroad has given her an international reputation. She spent some years in India on behalf of the Young Women's Christian Association, and travelled for it in America and other countries.

In stating her reasons for allying herself with the Labor party, Miss Picton-Turbervill said:

"The party has a definite practical program. Its policy is founded on Christian principles. It has been the chief champion of woman's entry into politics."

NOT WITH ASTOR
If Miss Picton-Turbervill gets into Parliament she will not be on the same side as Lady Astor or Mrs. Wintingham.

"My politics are not the same as theirs," she said, "but I am sure that on all things affecting the welfare of women and children we should make ourselves on common ground, although in many cases I would go further than they for the betterment of the working women. For example, I stand definitely for widows' pensions."

DANCE FROCK
A lavender chiffon dance frock comes in a shaded tone that is deeper at the hem. It has a lovely girlish of silver leaves arranged on a blue girde.

Wash-Tub Parasites Attack Your Clothes
Do you know what causes those thin spots and little holes in your nearly new sheets, towels, napkins and tablecloths? Can you answer for waists and underwear that come from the wash looking frayed and gray?

Don't blame the goods nor the woman who washes. First find out whether your laundry soap has "filter" in it to make a little soap look like a large bar. Women who use ordinary white and yellow laundry soap are often rubbing "filter" into their clothes instead of rubbing dirt out. This wears out the woman and the clothes besides it rots the fabric or cuts the threads, for much of the "filter" in laundry soap is made from water glass which crystallizes when the clothes dry.

My advice is to ask your grocer for the large, greenish, all-soap bar called GREEN ARROW, made by The Palmolive Co. It is probably the first home laundry bar containing olive oil combined with naphtha. And nothing makes clothes snowier and fresher than olive oil. This is why fabric makers wash with olive oil soap.

Have you never wondered why you couldn't get a laundry soap with olive oil when you knew it was so cleansing and softening and mild? Well, olive oil would be too expensive for laundry soap, except that The Palmolive Co. buys it in such huge quantities and has also reduced the cost of manufacture.

Being all soap, GREEN ARROW is all cleaning power and hence goes nearly twice as far as ordinary soap that is only part soap. And it never burns the hands.

SIKI TO COME TO U. S. TO BOX AMERICAN FIGHTERS

BLACK CHAMPION WANTS FORTUNE TO FIGHT WILLS

Carpentier's Conqueror Demands 1,100,000 Francs to Battle in America

New York—Battling Siki, the Senegalese boxer who has risen to sudden pugilistic fame by his knockout of Georges Carpentier, was besieged Tuesday by offers from New York fight promoters for bouts with American opponents here. His manager M. Hellers, has at least three propositions under consideration.

Tex Rickard after receiving a cablegram from Heller, expressing willingness to bring Siki to this country after Jan. 1, cabled an offer to match the Senegalese with any prominent light heavyweight including Harry Greb, Gene Tunney, or Tom Gibbons. Rickard however, said he made no financial proposition to Siki and would not do so pending a reply.

OFFERED $100,000

In addition Dave Driscoll, matchmaker for Ebbets field, has cabled an offer of $100,000 for Siki to box Harry Williams, negro challenger for Jack Dempsey's heavyweight title, on Oct. 12 and Thomas F. O'Rourke, matchmaker for the Republic A. C., has put up a bid of $25,000 for a contest with either Wills or Greb, preferably the latter, some time in October at the Polo grounds.

Meanwhile the only indication of Siki's attitude toward any of these offers was contained in a cable dispatching his manager as rejecting O'Rourke's terms and demanding 1,100,000 francs or $33,000.

Paris—One million francs is what Battling Siki, the conqueror of Georges Carpentier, asks to go to America to fight Harry Wills at the Polo Grounds on Oct. 26. Manager Heller cabled Tom Rickard, American fight promoter, Monday evening in response to an offer of $20,000.

Hellers said he considered O'Rourke's offer totally inadequate. He added that he had received an offer of a large sum for Siki to meet the winner of the Joe Beckett-Frank Moran fight in England on Boxing day, the day after Christmas. Beckett and Moran will fight on Oct. 12. The manager of the Senegalese said he did not desire to go to the United States unless the financial inducements made it worth while.

DISINCLINED TO MAKE TRIP

Siki himself at first was disinclined to make the trip to the United States. But later he said he would do so if Hellers terms were accepted. It is the opinion of Heller that it would be a good thing for Siki to meet Wills immediately, as he considers Wills the only man standing in the way of a bout between Siki and Jack Dempsey for the world's title.

The message sent by Heller to O'Rourke Monday evening was as follows:

"Want 1,100,000 francs net, exclusive of income tax. Am ready to leave immediately and have Siki fight Wills Oct. 26."

The extra 100,000 francs above the million mark, Heller explained, were for the expenses of the trip to the United States and for training expenditures.

Siki was accorded a tremendous ovation in the sporting centers of Paris Monday evening when he arrived by automobile at the office of Eche de Sports, one of the foremost French sporting papers. There were such crowds in the streets that traffic was stopped for more than an hour. The fighter modestly acknowledged the ovation.

GAMBLING POOLS ALSO AFFLICT MINOR LEAGUES

Nearly $50,000 Thrown Away Weekly in American Association Cities

(Special to Post-Crescent)

(How baseball pools gambling was operating on a gigantic scale in major league team cities was told in the Post-Crescent Saturday. Tuesday the survey, conducted by NEA SERVICE shows how gamblers operate in American association cities.)

Kansas City—Baseball pool flourish in most American association cities. Sales in the eight cities average between $40,000 and $50,000 a week. Mystery covers most operations, but pool tickets are sold openly in some cities—namely Kansas City, which is regarded as minor league gambling headquarters in the middle West.

Here baseball pools and horse race handbooks are operated in at least three cigar stores.

LIKE AUCTIONEER

In one place the salesman mounts a stand like an auctioneer and calls out to the crowd:

"Here's your chance to get $50 for a dime."

Occasionally a policeman in uniform walks in, and the selling stops until he goes out again.

Five thousand people in Kansas City buy chances weekly. A similar number plays the baseball pools in Indianapolis, spending $10,000 a week. In Toledo 2,000 regular players spend a similar amount.

Selling is open in Toledo, where the ticket buyers spend $1,500 a day to win $12,000. It was open in Indianapolis also, until a recent police crusade was started.

HAVE ROUTES

More than half the tickets in Kansas City are sold by agents who have regular routes through office buildings and factories. The remainder are sold in cigar stores and billiard rooms as in most cities.

Pools are based on scores of games in the two major leagues and in the American association. The principal daily pools are made up with tickets containing the names of three clubs out of the 24 in the three leagues.

These tickets are sold for 10 cents each, the person holding the names of the three clubs getting the largest number of runs that day winning $50. The ticket drawing the smallest number of runs wins $20. Prize money is divided in case of tie.

Weekly pools are operated on the same basis as daily pools. These tickets cost 25 cents, with a grand prize of $500 and four lesser prizes.

Profits of $500 a day are made in cities where the business reaches $10,000 a week, according to estimates. Many pools are small, and locally operated, but the big money is handled through a national pool, headquarters of which are believed to be in New York.

St. Paul "exterminated" baseball pools in 1920, but they returned this year and estimates place sales at $3,500 a week. In Minneapolis open selling exists in two places, but betting is mostly on single games instead of weekly run totals.

GAMBLE IN MILWAUKEE

Several thousand dollars change hands weekly in Milwaukee, though last year's raids.

Columbus is the one city reporting very little activity in baseball pools. Following the scandal in 1919, there was a cleanup, and ticket selling is restricted and secret.

Mayors, police chiefs, prominent citizens and baseball officials in all cities condemn baseball pools.

Chief Frank Anderson of Kansas City says it is hard to get evidence.

"Baseball pools are a form of gambling and as such they shall be stopped," says Chief H. F. Rikhoff of Indianapolis.

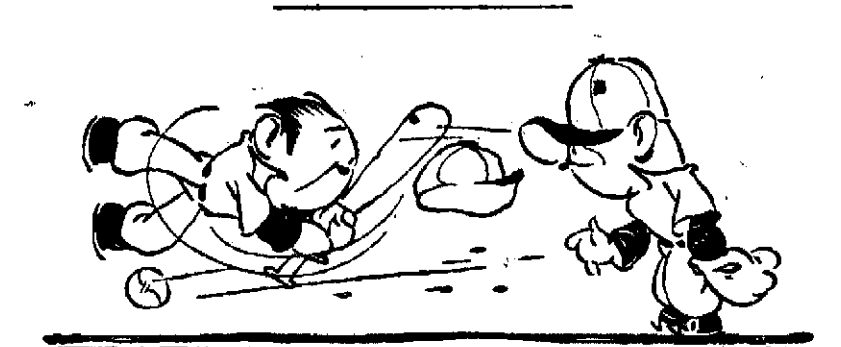

Chief Jennings of Toledo said he had never heard any complaints.

Mayor A. E. Nelson of St. Paul says: "No information relative to operation of baseball pools has come to my attention."

Women buy tickets in some cities, survey shows. Boys are customers, too, but not openly.

Use of the mails has started inquiry by federal officials, notably in Minneapolis, where individual subscribers to national pools have dope sheets mailed to them weekly.

Yankees Anxious That Giants Win; Want To Revenge 1921 Beating

BY BILLY EVANS

In the boxing game, when a fighter scores a decisive victory through the medium of a knockout punch, the impression prevails that he has something on his opponent.

If the two fighters ever meet in a return match the "kayo" scored by one of them gives him a decided edge in rating the two men. The memory of the previous battle always seems to linger with a fighter who has been counted out.

It would seem that such a feeling should hold good in all forms of sports—that the psychology of the previous trimming, certainly would play an important part in the outcome.

ON THE ROPES

Last year the New York Giants, in ring parlance, handed a knockout to the New York Yankees after the Yankees had all the best of the first two rounds and had the Giants staggering on the ropes, clinching to avoid further punishment.

On the dope it would seem that the Yankees would not relish a meeting with the Giants, in case they win the American league pennant again. On the contrary, the Yankees are "pulling strong" for the Giants. They want to meet McGraw's team in case they are fortunate enough to repeat.

There are two reasons why the Yankees are pulling for the Giants.

LURE OF LUCRE

First, is the lure of lucre. The players realize that a New York series will draw more money than one staged in any other place.

Secondly, the Yankees feel they have an excellent chance to turn the tables on the Giants. They want to meet McGraw's club is anxious for the Yankees to win. Last year's victory should cause them to enter the struggle bubbling over with confidence. No doubt the team would look for an easier victory than in 1921.

That is what makes baseball—a difference of opinion.

GIANTS NOW HAVE CINCH ON PENNANT

New York—New York clinched its tenth National league championship here on Monday when the Giants defeated St. Louis in a ten inning game, 5 to 4.

It was the eighth championship won in New York under McGraw's leadership since 1904 and marks the first time since 1913 that a National league champion has repeated.

George Kelly's hitting was largely responsible for the New York's victory. He tied the score in the sixth inning with a home run with Young on base, while his single in the tenth after Young had been intentionally passed drove in Frisch with the winning run.

St. Louis made a brilliant stand in the ninth inning, when New York had one run in, the bases full and none out, but failed to get over the run necessary to clinch the pennant.

Stengel, the veteran New York center fielder, strained a leg muscle coming in for a short fly and was relieved by Cunningham.

The Yankees, leading the St. Louis Browns by three and a half games and needing but one more victory to clinch the American title cannot settle the issue before Thursday when they open a three game series in Boston.

The Browns will complete their season with a three game series with the Chicago White Sox beginning Friday.

In the only other major league played Monday Cincinnati trounced Philadelphia 10 to 3 and climbed to within a fraction of a percentage point of the Cardinals in the battle for third place.

ROACH SELECTED ON NOTRE DAME TEAM

John Roach, star quarterback of the Appleton high school football team last year, and now a student of Notre Dame university, has been selected for left quarterback of the first team of the freshman class there, according to word received by relatives and friends here.

Roach was selected out of 125 candidates.

FOOTBALL FANS TO GET DOUBLE TREAT SATURDAY

Lawrence and High Scheduled On Same Field For Next Game

Football fans of Appleton will receive a double treat Saturday afternoon when Lawrence and the high school teams are scheduled to play on Lawrence athletic field.

Officials of the high school and the college were scheduled to meet Tuesday to arrange the time for the games. The high graders will raise the curtain with a contest against Antigo. Lawrence will play its initial game with Stevens Point normal.

Coach Denney is sending his men through scrimmages this week and gradually getting his athletes in form. The mentor's policy is to get his graders in the finest condition possible. For this reason he has continued individual practice last week with some team work in the line of signals.

Coach Denney's charges will face a tough battle Saturday. The easy "meat" of last Saturday will not be here again, in the opinion of the followers of the Blue and Gold. Last year in the game played at Antigo, the Appleton team was beaten 19 to 0. The game was played in six inches of snow and the Appleton men seemed baffled and hopeless by the tactics of their hosts. But in the opinion of some observers Appleton wasn't beaten because it had a peerless team but because of over confidence.

The high school men arrived in Antigo after a march of triumph over Wausau, Menominee and Waupun, and with their chests swelled rather high. Some danger of this is even feared for the coming game because of the runaway with Manitowoc.

PRACTICE FOR TRACK MEET STARTS TUESDAY

Track meets with St. John's, Oshkosh normal and possibly with the University of Wisconsin will be held this year by Lawrence college.

Plans were taken up at a meeting Monday afternoon called by Captain Homer Hunt. A score of the athletes were present. It was urged that all those interested in this field of athletics should get out on the field. Practice was scheduled to start Tuesday afternoon.

Among the events considered was a novel race, similar to the Wisconsin turkey race. Winners of first place will receive a turkey. The course has not been decided upon but will be about three miles long.

HITS GAMBLERS

BAN JOHNSON
BY ROY GIBBONS

Chicago—"Baseball pools operating with unbelievable wild open flagrancy in countless sections and cities of the country, constitute an impending menace which must be checked immediately by drastic measures before the life of America's national sport is further endangered."

This is the statement made by Ban Johnson, president of the American League here, in an interview.

"I have never seen a year in which pool gambling nuisance was as bad as it is this season," he said. "The operators of these sure-thing games are back in droves. They are multiplying innocent fans out of millions of dollars."

Chicago—The city series between the two local major league clubs to decide the championship of Chicago will start on Wednesday, Oct. 4, with the opening game at the National league park, home of the Cubs. This was decided at a meeting of officials of both clubs in the office of Baseball Commissioner K. M. Landis. The schedule calls for seven games, and the series will be played under the same rules which govern the world's series.

Football Prospects Brighten At Lawrence With Return Of Smith

Last Year's Captain Back At Center—McChesney Stock Goes Up Several More Notches

Visions of another football championship at Lawrence college took more definite form as the result of the return of "Bill" Smith, captain of the 1921 squad, this week.

"Bill" has been a big factor in the team's success the last two years, having been chosen all-state center both years. Now that he is free from the responsibility of the captaincy he will be able to put more gusto into his playing.

The return of Smith will enable Coach H. D. McChesney to shift hunting to his regular position at guard and thus the line will present almost the same strength as the famous "stonewall" of last year.

The renewed hopes stimulated by Smith's return is evident both on the field in the increased confidence of the players and the spirit with which the past two scrimmages were gone into. The campus also has reflected the good turn of events by the increased football enthusiasm and the numbers that have been turning out to watch the team practice.

WHITE SOX AND CUBS OPEN CITY SERIES OCT. 4

Chicago—The city series between the two local major league clubs to decide the championship of Chicago will start on Wednesday, Oct. 4, with the opening game at the National league park, home of the Cubs. This was decided at a meeting of officials of both clubs in the office of Baseball Commissioner K. M. Landis. The schedule calls for seven games, and the series will be played under the same rules which govern the world's series.

EPPA RIXEY HAS WON 23 BALL GAMES THIS SEASON

Philadelphia—Cincinnati pounded two Philadelphia hurlers for an easy 10 to 3 victory in the second game of the series on Monday. Eppa Rixey turned in his twenty-third victory of the season for the Reds. Although nine safeties were made off his south-paw slants, he always held the upper hand.

TRAILING THE TEAMS

The New York Giants Tuesday are champions of the National league for the tenth time in their career.

Long George Kelly lashed out the hit that scored Frank Frisch with the winning run in the tenth inning of a tense struggle with the St. Louis Cardinals and removed all trace of mathematical uncertainty in the pennant chase. The final score was 5 to 4 and Bill Ryan, who relieved McQuillan in the tenth received credit for the victory.

The Yankees, leading the St. Louis Browns by three and a half games and needing but one more victory to clinch the American title cannot settle the issue before Thursday when they open a three game series in Boston.

The Browns will complete their season with a three game series with the Chicago White Sox beginning Friday.

In the only other major league played Monday Cincinnati trounced Philadelphia 10 to 3 and climbed to within a fraction of a percentage point of the Cardinals in the battle for third place.

That mild richness and fragrant sweetness of a Mi Lola is due to the mellow old Vuelta Havana in it. Cigars made of unseasoned Havana cannot compare. Believe this: we would not store immense quantities of costly leaf for years did it not vastly improve our cigars. Learn to say "Mi Lola." Say it at the next cigar counter. Light, puff and smile!

America May Be Forced to Accept German Measurements, Engineer Says

By Associated Press

New York—German standards—as the word is applied in manufacturing and not in philosophy—will some day be the standards by which America will have to furnish materials to most of the countries of the world, according to Oscar R. Wikander, an American engineer, who has just returned from Germany where he represented the American Engineering Standard Committee.

ARE YOU LOOKING FOR PLACE? HERE ARE FEW PALACES

But It Takes Millionaires' Money To Rent Them From Poor Turks

By Associated Press

Constantinople—The Sublime Porte is considering seriously the note from the Allied high commissioner regarding the reduction of government employees, and it is expected that action will be taken which will make good the monthly deficit of 500,000 Turkish pounds in the wages to government servants.

TURKS OCCUPY POSITIONS

London—Further indications of the restlessness of the Turkish nationalists over their enforced idleness while awaiting for peace to be arranged, are recounted in late dispatches from Constantinople.

Two divisions of Turkish cavalry, have occupied Eren Keul, which lies only 12 miles southwest of Chanak, the main British position on the southern shore of the Dardanelles and eight miles east of Kum Kaleh, from which heavy guns can dominate the entrance to the straits from the Aegean sea.

Brigadier General Sir Charles Harrington, British commander, has sent a request to Mustafa Kemal Pasha for the withdrawal of the cavalry. Pending receipt of his reply a British mobile column has been stationed between Chanak and Eren Keul ready for eventualities.

FRANCE WANTS CLEAR ZONE

Paris—France is in complete accord with the other Allied powers in making the strongest effort to keep the Turks out of the neutral zones and avoiding all incidents, it was explained Tuesday in official quarters.

READY FOR FIGHT

Constantinople—Major General F. B. Maurice, the British Military expert who has just returned from a visit to the British positions at Chanak, expressed the opinion the British would be able, if necessary to hold this key position against any attempts to drive them out. General Maurice thought there was no question that Mustafa Kemal would accept the Allied proposals with reservations.

"But if he elects to fight us," added the general, "we are prepared. Our land, naval and air forces are such that we can prevent him from crossing the straits and invading Thrace and can successfully keep him out of Constantinople."

MUST RECOGNIZE KING

Athens—Because former Premier Venizelos does not recognize either King Constantine or the existing regime, the Greek government asks for the collaboration of Venizelos in the present grave hour. Premier Triantafyllakos declares negative reports in the press here that he was considering the inclusion of Venizelos in a new national ministry representing all parties.

The premier said he believed in a policy of conciliation but that the Greek people had expressed their will concerning the king in no uncertain voice, voting by a large majority to ask him to return. Until Venizelos had bowed before the voice of the people the premier did not see how his collaboration would be possible.

CIVIL WAR VETERANS TO HOLD PARADE WEDNESDAY

By Associated Press

Des Moines, Ia.—Twenty thousand civil war veterans, here for the fifty-sixth annual encampment of the G. A. R., joined Tuesday in reunion of every major unit of the union army in the Civil war.

Wednesday the Grand Army and affiliated organizations will unite in what may be the last great parade of the veterans of the Civil war.

The last of the special trains bringing delegations to the encampment arrived Monday night and the registers of the various organizations showed an attendance of more than 20,000 Grand Army veterans and about 20,000 members of auxiliary organizations.

SULTAN MAY QUIT

Constantinople—There are growing indications that the sultan's retirement from the throne is imminent. The violent epithets said to have been used by Mustapha Kemal against the sultan in the course of interviews with newspaper men have caused painful dismay in the palace. The sultan is represented as being in an extreme state of collapse and audiences have been suspended.

The armistice conference to arrange for the cessation of hostilities between the Greeks and Turkish Nationalists will be held at Mudania on or about Oct. 2, provided that the Ankara government accepts the provisional peace terms outlined in the note from the Allied powers.

This was decided at council of the Allied high commissioners here Monday afternoon in the British embassy and attended by Hamid Bey, representative of the nationalists. Hamid asked pledges from the British that the positions around Chanak be not reinforced during the progress of the negotiations.

Rear Admiral Bristol, American high commissioner, did not participate in the council but it is understood the United States will have an observer at the final peace conference.

U. S. SAILORS AID

Fire that broke out in Constantinople shortly after 10 o'clock Monday night, causing intense excitement and fears that an attempt was being made to burn the capital, was controlled after a fight of two hours.

The blaze originated in a music hall in upper Pera, one of the main thoroughfares. The audience was stampeded and a fire alarm sounded.

A general alarm brought to the scene all the available salvage corps and the Allied police and American sailors helped rescue the excited spectators and the occupants of nearby buildings. A hose run from the British embassy half a mile away, helped to check the fire. So far as could be ascertained there was no loss of life.

The Nizhni-Novgorod fair dates back to the fourteenth century. It was then held at Kazan. For the last 100 years it has been held at Nizhni-Novgorod, a small town at the junction of the Volga and Oka rivers, about 265 miles east of Moscow.

RUSSIANS WANT TO REESTABLISH TRADE WITH ASIA

Industrial Fair for Promotion of Trade Will Be Held in August

Moscow—The Nizhni-Novgorod fair, among the oldest of the world's gatherings for the promotion of trade, will open this year on the first of August and again bring together the merchants of eastern Asia and the buyers and sellers of Moscow.

Trader from Persia, Bokara, Turkestan, Afghanistan, Mongolia and the Far Eastern Republic are being encouraged in many ways to come and bring their goods with them, and Russia will be represented by a number of state trusts and syndicates, Soviet economic councils, and co-operative societies.

The reopening of the fair is being attended by considerable difficulty and there is very little left today of the old buildings and equipment. Everything has had to be replaced or repaired; a thousand men are engaged in the work of restoration; billions of paper rubles are being spent and yet with all this the Soviet Council of Labor and Defense hopes to be able to restore not more than a quarter of the ruined property. "If the fair this year shows 10 per cent of its previous turnover," one fair official said recently, "we shall be satisfied."

While the Soviet government will be represented at the gathering, few private merchants and private trade concerns have as yet made application for space. To counteract this apparent indifference the fair officials have announced that no special privileges will be granted to state merchants, trusts or syndicates, and no obstacles placed in the way of private organizations.

The Nizhni-Novgorod fair dates back to the fourteenth century. It was then held at Kazan. For the last 100 years it has been held at Nizhni-Novgorod, a small town at the junction of the Volga and Oka rivers, about 265 miles east of Moscow.

MARQUIS GETS IN LIMELIGHT AS HE PLANS MARRIAGE

Marquis of Huntly is Robust Old Chap Despite Ease of His Life

London—The announcement that the Marquis of Huntly was going to marry an American widow has caused the limelight of publicity to shine far more brightly upon him than if his castle had been burned down by Sinn Feiners. Several Irish peers have had that distinction thrust upon them of late but they have not, in consequence, been written up anything like as extensively as has the septuagenarian Marquis.

He is 75 years old. He is described as the handsomest member of the peerage and the most courtly mannered. He celebrated his golden wedding in 1919. His first wife died a few months later. There were no children by that marriage.
